REIGN OF TERROR ABOARD VESSEL LASTS 16 DAYS

Burn Assistant Engineer With Red Hot Rake for Not Joining Mutiny

LOS ANGELES, March 3. — A reign of terror that lasted for sixteen days aboard the freighter Lake Pepin, during which A. T. Sutherland, first assistant engineer of the ship, was severely burned when attacked by rioting members of the crew, it was revealed at the local harbor today following the arrival of the steamer from New Orleans. A red hot rake was used in branding Sutherland, it was learned from members of the crew, when he refused to join the ranks of the mutineers.

The uprising started when the Lake Pepin was but a few hours out from Balboa when alleged radical members of the crew revolted, it was reported.

In Heavy Gale

In addition to the mutiny another thrilling adventure during the trip was experienced when ten days ago, while in the Gulf of Tehauntepec a heavy gale was encountered and the ship was tossed about like a cork when some of the crew refused to perform their duties.

Several members of the crew were placed on a diet of bread and water by Captian L. H. Westdahl. A thorough investigation of the mutiny will be made by immigration authorities with a view to prosecution, it was stated.

Realty Broker Will Receive Speedy Trial On Charge of Murder

SANTA CRUZ, March 3.—District Attorney Stanford G. Smith announced today that John R. Masters, realty broker, charged with the murder of his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Masters, will be given a speedy trial.

Masters was indicted after a special grand jury had heard three witnesses. He was argaigned before Superior Judge B. K. Knight today and his trial probably will be set Monday. In view of the fact that he has so far been unable to secure an attorney, the court will probably appoint one.

"We plan to rush the trial with all possible speed," District Attorney Smith said today. "Masters will be tried this month if it is at all possible."

One of the three witnesses heard by the grand jury was Masters' 9-year-old daughter, Helen. Chief of Police F. K. Hannah, who has been active in gathering evidence against the realty broker, and Dr. A. L. Phillips, who attended Mrs. Masters after she had been beaten into unconsciousness at the Masters home with an iron bar, were the other witnesses.

Not Guilty Verdict in Charges Land Fraud

CHICAGO, March 3.—Fraud charges against twelve officials of the Daniel Hayes Land company were lifted today as a result of the verdict of not guilty returned last night by a jury in federal court.

The trial has been in progress seven weeks and more than 200 witnesses were heard.

Ship Burns at Sea; Wireless Call Saves Lives of All Crew

SAN FRANCISCO, March 3.—The motor ship, Babinda, burned at sea early today off Santa Cruz, 140 miles south of this port.

Her crew put off in small boats and was saved by the steamer Cecilo, which heard her distress calls.

According to radio advices here the fire was discovered at 3:45 a. m. in the engine room of the Babinda, which was en route to San Pedro from Astoria, laden with lumber. The fire swept the ship like tinder and twenty-five minutes later the S. O. S. call was broadcasted.

So fiercely were the flames burning at that time that the small boats were lowered and all aboard were forced to quit the ship in haste.

Cecilo was only a few miles away and, attracted by the S. O. S. call, made all speed to the scene.

Glendale legionnaires enjoyed a meeting of scouting last night, when they entertained and were entertained in the Legion hall on East Broadway by Troop 88, Los Angeles Boy Scouts, led by Scoutmaster Fred Letten. Those assisting were Jack Sugars, assistant scoutmaster; Douglas Moore, Harper Olmstead and Fred Davies, Eagle Scouts; Sidney Weiss, life scout; Henry Hunter, first class scout; Howard Hoffer and Oliver Folsom, second class scout.

The scouts had their orchestra and gave demonstrations of signaling, fire lighting by friction, and first aid. They also sang "Slum" and "Scratch," and gave the scout oath.

Insane War Veteran Holds Scores at Bay; Tear Gas Gets Him

CLEVELAND, March 3. — A wounded and shell shocked veteran of the world war, under a hallucination that he was fighting off "murdering Germans," at the Verdun front, wounded two policemen and his brother, and held half a hundred policement at bay for seven hours early today despite the barrage of pistol shots and "tear bombs."

The insane veteran, John Weitzel, 27, a member of the Fifth division, was finally captured by a strategic trick by Captain Williams McMasters and confined in the county jail.

The capture came after Weitzel was driven to the window for air from the effects of the gas bombs. He was seen waving a white shirt as a flag of truce and yelled that he surrendered. When he refused to throw his gun out of the window, police refused to accept the surrender and fired a fusillade of shots to drive him back into the "tear gas."

Clubman, Accused of Killing, Out on Bail

Brock, banker, society and clubman, released in $35,000 bail in connection with the running down and killing of three persons by his motor car, may be arrested on a charge of second degree murder, it was learned today. Brock is already charged with homicide, passing a standing trolley car and failing to stop after hitting a pedestrian.

Conviction in each case would mean a prison sentence of sixty years maximum.

Uncle John Says:

Mary was more than pleased when she read in The Glendale Evening News that the 'buildin' permits for February come to more than a million dollars, makin' the total for the year more than two million. She says this is a little better than she expected, owin' to the fact that February is a short month. But I says, "Mary, there ain't much danger of settin' your hopes too high when it's a question of Glendale's progress. I knew the February permits would come up to the million mark." And as the boys say, I kind o' got her goat.

CONGRESS IN RACE AGAINST TIME OF ADJOURNMENT

Many Hundreds of Bills Will Die; Old Timers Quit Public Life

By WM. K. HUTCHINSON
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The sixty-seventh running of the famous American legislative handicap—one of the greatest races against time in political history—was under way in congress today with administration leaders of house and senate driving down the home stretch for the enactment of last minute laws.

Facing adjournment at noon Sunday until the new congress meets in December, the dying congress entered the final lap with hundreds of bills doomed to failure through lack of time for their consideration. Legislators were anxious to continue the session far into the night in an effort to clear the crowded legislative calendars.

New Faces for Old

Although great international treaties were ratified, a new tariff law enacted and extraordinary precedents set in extending aid to farmers, the congress now tottering on its death bed probably held a greater claim on political history in the larger number of nationally known statesmen it retired to private life. Of the men who gathered today in house and senate for the final session, fifteen senators and 126 congressmen were about to shed their togas for the "mufti" of civil life.

Major parties and noted individuals were among those who sang their "swan songs" to the tune of the "march of the limping ducks," as composed last November by "vox populi." In the senate, ten Republicans, seven of them committeemen, and five Democrats were attending their last session in the senate, 113 Republicans, twelve Democrats and one Socialist were bidding their colleagues farewell.

Try to Halt Debate

While farewell gatherings were in order, party leaders strove to shut out debate so that every minute might be devoted to enacting legislation.

Both house and senate had passed all bills on the administration's program with the sole exception of the ship subsidy, which failed in the senate. Hundreds of measures, however, with individual supporters, were caught in the jam.

The situation was worse in the senate than in the house. When the last session started, indications were the senate and house would continue until early tomorrow when a recess would be taken to a few minutes before noon Sunday. Both branches then will meet again to formally adjourn the sixty-seventh congress.

ANOTHER HEN IS ON HONOR LISTS

Albert Horn's Black Minorca Lays Egg Measuring 6 3-8 by 7 3-8 Inches

In response to the call for chicken fanciers to bring their big eggs to The Glendale Evening News office for measurement, Albert Horn, of 431 West Broadway, yesterday produced one 6⅜ x7⅜ inches, laid by Mrs. Black Minorca, aged three years.

This proved larger than the 6 x7⅜-inch specimen laid by Mrs. Jersey Black Giant, property of H. W. Stone, but not so large as the 6⅜x8⅛-inch pair of Herculean spheroids laid by Mrs. England White Leghorn, owned by Mrs. M. L. Lindsay.

Any more big eggs, folks? Don't be backward in putting your pets forward!

HUSBAND DIES, SO WIFE ENDS LIFE

She Commits Suicide on Eve Of His Funeral; Leaves Two Notes

LOS ANGELES, March 3.—Rather than go through life alone, Mrs. Rinse Jacobson, 28, ended her life today in her Hollywood boulevard apartment by inhaling gas a few hours before funeral services were to be held for her husband, Ludwig Jacobson, who died as the result of an operation. The tragedy was discovered by Theodore Jacobson, a brother-in-law.

All arrangements had been made for the husband's funeral. The young widow was prostrated, and although her brother-in-law did all possible to console her, her grief proved greater than her desire to live.

Leaves Two Notes

Two unsigned notes were found near the woman's body. One read: "I want to die—please do not save me."

The other note stated: "When I am dead give me my little sweater and suit. Don't braid my hair or fix it up. I wanted to give the flowers to Jack, but didn't. They are for him—all for him. The money is in my purse."

It was indicated that funeral services for the husband would probably be delayed until arrangements could be made for the wife, and they would be buried together.

Motorists Without Licenses After March 10 Face Arrest by Police

Glendale motorists, who are still traveling under last year's license, have one more week of grace.

The Glendale police department has been notified by William H. Marsh, chief of the division of motor vehicles at the state capitol, to arrest all motorists whose automobiles are minus 1923 plates after March 10.

Col. J. D. Fraser, chief of police, was notified this morning that the California motor vehicle department this year does not contemplate the issuance of any published list of automobile licenseholders. These publications, issued quarterly last year, were used extensively by police departments in tracing the ownership of abandoned and stolen automobiles.

Instead of publishing an official list, police departments have been extended the privilege of wiring or telephoning directly to Sacramento or Los Angeles for information in regard to any automobile license—at their own expense.

Outside of the delay involved, Chief Fraser does not see how the local department can continue to investigate automobile licenses as freely as in the past without incurring large telephone and telegraph bills. He is instructing desk sergeants to use their own discretion in obtaining this information.

French Troops Make Great Advance; Take Over Rhine Harbor

MAYENCE, March 3.—French troops advanced today along a 50-mile front in Rhenish Bavaria, Baden and Hesse, occupying additional German cities of great strategic importance.

French troops entered the great inland port and railway city of Mannheim at 6 o'clock. There were about 500 infantry and cavalry supported with machine gun platoons, tanks and armored cars.

By 9 o'clock the city had been completely taken over. Up to that hour there had been no hostile incidents. Mannheim is forty miles south of Mayence.

French troops took over the Rhine harbor at Karlsruhe during the afternoon.

The fresh occupation of German territory effectually cuts main line railway communication between Berlin, Baden and Wuerttemberg.

All the railroad lines in the newly occupied zones were taken over by the French and wharves along the Rhine river were seized.

BALLOT AGAINST RESOLUTION AMID GREAT UPROAR

Half of Senators Are Not Aware of What They Are Voting Upon

WASHINGTON, March 3. —The senate this afternoon formally refused to consider President Harding's proposal for American participation in the international court of justice as created under the treaty of Versailles.

A motion by Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, to take up his resolution accepting the president's proposal, was defeated 49 to 24, the vote being taken while the senate was in a state of uproar due to a parliamentary tangle.

The vote came while a half dozen senators were shouting for recognition and when half the senate was not aware of the subject being voted upon. King had obtained recognition and moved to consider "a resolution introduced a few days ago." Before the resolution was read King had called for a vote and the roll call started.

Attempts by senators to stop the roll call to learn what the resolution contained were blocked by parliamentary objections and the roll call ended without the subject of the resolution being announced. The vote was strictly on party lines, Republicans voting against King's motion and Democrats supporting him.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Appeal for the American government to diplomatically ostracize the Turkish government until "an independent state is set up in Armenia," was made in a resolution introduced in the senate this afternoon by Senator King, Democrat, Utah.

Many Notables Quit With Sixty-Seventh Congress

OFFICIAL WASHINGTON CHANGES AS 'OLD TIMERS' QUIETLY GO

Political Careers of Number of Prominent Men Close With Final Session Today

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
For International News Service

GEORGE R. HOLMES

WASHINGTON, March 3.—More than a score of men who have been national figures in the last quarter of a century, and who have left their imprint upon the pages of American history, passed from the national stage today with the ending of the sixty-seventh congress.

Some of them retire of their own accord after many years of service; others are retiring by the expressed will of their constituents; but regardless of the method of their going, their absence will entail radical changes in the make-up of what is known as "official Washington."

Probably the most widely known of all of those to pass is "Uncle Joe" Cannon, who has completed forty-six years in the house of representatives, a record that stands supreme. "Uncle Joe" is retiring voluntarily, and no pang of defeat will embitter his remaining years, nor mar the memory of his great service. Only once in nearly half a century have the "home folks" of Danville, Ill., turned "Uncle Joe" down. That was in 1912, at the start of the Wilson administration. He was absent for two years, but came back in 1914 and has been consistently re-elected since. His service spans from the forty-third congress to the sixty-seventh inclusive. He has been for years the only man in congress with vivid recollection of Lincoln, for he was a delegate to the memorable convention that nominated The Emancipator.

Few men have attained the eminence in Congress that "Uncle Joe" held and maintained for so many years. For eight of those years he was Speaker of the House, his power virtually unlimited, his dominance unquestioned. He was the last of the "Czars." He was broken by the Progressive-Insurgents from the West in the first skirmish of that long chain of events that led up to the famous Republican split of 1912.

Two other "old timers" of the House to pass are Frank W. Mondell (R), of Wyoming, and Joseph W. Fordney (R), of Michigan. Mondell, who has served twenty-six years in the House, was defeated in his aspiration for the Senate this year. His going will necessitate a new Republican leader of the lower chamber. Fordney, with twenty-four years of service, retires voluntarily in order, he said, "to spend my declining years enjoying my grandchildren." His going leaves vacant the chairmanship of the all-powerful Ways and Means Committee. With Senator McCumber (R.), of North Dakota, he sponsored the present Republican tariff law.

Philip P. Campbell (R.), of Kansas, with twenty years of continuous service, also will be among the missing in the new Congress. He is chairman of the powerful Rules Committee. He was defeated in the primaries.

Andrew J. Volstead (R.), of Minnesota, author of the most famous piece of legislation the Congress ever passed, also retires—beaten by a man who boasted during the campaign that he was "drier than Volstead." Volstead is chairman of the Judiciary Committee.

C. Bascom Slemp, who for sixteen years has borne the distinction of being the only Republican in the House from Virginia, retires with the Sixty-seventh Congress. He declned a renomination and his district will be represented in the new Congress by a Democrat for the first time in years.

Senate Ratio Greater

On the Senate side the passing of well-known figures is even more pronounced, because the casualties last November were proportionately greater.

Two men who came in on the same day 24 years ago pass out together—both beaten, singularly enough, not by the opposition party, by by their own parties in the primaries. They are Senators Porter J. McCumber (R), of North Dakota, and Charles A. Culberson (D.), of Texas.

McCumber's passing is somewhat ironical. After 24 years of service he attained the goal of all Senators, the chairmanship of the powerful Finance Committee, through the unexpected death of Boies Penrose. He occupied the chair only a few months before falling before the displeasure of his constituents, but in that time he fathered the present tariff bill, with Fordney, of Michigan, and also the bonus bill, which was vetoed by the President.

A familiar and powerful figure on the Democratic side who passes from the picture today is Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, of Nebraska, who was President Wilson's spokesman in the memorable League of Nations fight. He has served 12 years.

Senator Miles Poindexter (R.), of Washington, an old "irreconcilable" in that fight, goes along to keep Hitchcock company. Poindexter will be the new American Ambassador to Peru.

Many Others Depart

Other well-known Senators who are bidding good-bye today to the associates of years are:

Senator Atlee Pomerene (D.), of Ohio, whose defeat in November punctured a Presidential boom that already had attained considerable proportions.

Senator Charles E. Townsend (R.), of Michigan, known as the "good roads" champion of Congress. He served eight years in the House before reaching the Senate.

Senator John Sharp Williams (D.), of Mississippi, last of the old school Southerners in the Senate, whose sharp tongue and ready wit have provided the sparkle in many famous debates.

Senator Joseph I. France (R.), of Maryland, "irreconcilable," friend of Soviet Russia, and the only man who voted against the Washington naval treaties.

Loses Golf Partners

Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen (R.), of New Jersey, the golfing partner of President Harding and his host on many occasions.

Senator Frank B. Kellogg (R.), of Minnesota, another golfing partner of the President.

Senator Harry S. New (R.), of Indiana, still another of the President's close personal friends and once chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Associations of many years are being ended today as the "lame ducks" begin to wend their way "back home"—out of the national spotlight.

After many years of service some of these men, who had become imposing figures in the nation's political life, were obliged to lay down their duties and retire to private life. The end of the sixty-seventh congress carried with it the conclusion of the political careers of a number of senators and representatives whose names have become synonymous with national politics. In some cases retirement was voluntary, in other cases compulsory.

YOUNG ATHLETES GIVE EXHIBITION

Gymnastic Display Yields Lots of Excitement in Methodist Church

Gymnastic demonstrations were given Thursday night in the social hall of the Central avenue Methodist church, by a group of boys and young men living in that section of the city. This group of gymnasium enthusiasts is directed by H. Loren Mitchell, assistant supervisor of physical education in the Los Angeles schools, and J. Floyd McMasters, physical instructor at the Glendale Avenue Intermediate school.

The evening's program started with a live basketball game on the outdoor court, the two instructors being captains of the two teams. The game was close and exciting, the teams alternating in breaking ahead for a two point lead. Mitchell's team finally broke the tie at 10 to 8 when time was called.

Gymnastic Drill

A gymnastic drill followed. If any muscles were neglected in this drill, it was not apparent. Groans and cracking joints spoke of the intensity of effort, but all came up smiling and in fine fettle for the evening's activities.

Tumbling and high diving brought out some individual promise among the members, Harold Williams being particularly keen in these events in the older group and Wilbur Wilkinson, Eugene Muhleman and Walter Conway among the juniors.

High jumping came next. Tom Stout, Charles Martin, Hershey Shaffer, Ruthford Wallace and Eugene Muhleman being the high men in this event.

Several comic stunts followed, corn cutter, barrel boxing, and ride-the-rail, pillow fight.

Two-round boxing bouts came next and there was at times a lively interchange of blows but no casualties. Wrestling brought forth qualms of fear for neck and limb but all squirmed out serenely. Several of the most commonly used holds in wrestling were demonstrated by the instructor.

The events closed with a collapsing pyramid in which the boys were piled almost to the ceiling and at a signal collapsed to a squirming, laughing mass.

Serve Refreshments

Refreshments were served and all voted the first affair of the 4 C's club a pronounced success. The club enrolls among its members the following:

Junior members: Kermit Swanson, 1256 South Boynton; Wilbur Wilkinson, 1256 South Boynton; Walter Conway, 307 East Garfield; Eugene Muhleman, 222 East Garfield; Charles Martin, 1010 South Florence place; James Moffett, California apartments; Phil Frohm, 4209 Parkdale; Alton Crotser, Perlita; Cecil and Claude Tatum, 4160 Verdant; Jack Sayler, 555 West Park; Bob Conway, 909 South Glendale.

THE STAR CAR

TIMING

DID you ever try and replace timing gears. You took off the radiator first, didn't you? Then you purchased new timing gears and put them in. Rather nasty job wasn't it? The Star uses Morse silent chain instead of timing gears.

Any wear is taken up by two bolts on the outside in ten minutes. If necessary the entire chain can be removed without taking off radiator.

PHYSICIAN WILL OPEN INSTITUTE

Dr. W. H. Appleton Will Launch Electronic Hospital on Isabel Street

Dr. W. H. Appleton of 111 East Broadway is now opening a hospital at 901 Isabel street which will be known as the Grand View Electronic Institute.

Glendale motorists, who traverse San Fernando road en route to Los Angeles, may observe this immense white Colonial building apout six blocks north of the thoroughfare on the south slope of the hill known as Mt. Washington.

Because of the magnificent view across to the north slope of the hills in Elysian Park Dr. Appleton is taking special pleasure in taking his friends to the site of the new institution. All have agreed with him that the commanding view is one of the most beautiful in this vicinity.

At one time this building was the home of Mrs. Helene Walters of Hollywood who had it built and furnished without regard to expense. The reception hall and reception room are both finished in mahogany and contain substantial furniture of the same material. The dining room has a large golden oak buffet across the entire side of the room. It is understood that the hand work on this alone occupied two cabinet makers about sixty days.

The large size of the bed rooms and their gloom-dispelling cheerfulness are features of this hospital.

Dr. W. H. Appleton is looking forward to holding open house in his new institution Thursday night. He expects to be host to a large number of Glendale friends. He will retain his practice in Glendale.

Motor Trip of Beauty
Take Care of Lame Ducks
Contest Over Budget
Jim Jeffries, Bankrupt

By Gil A. Cowan

IF you desire to see California at its best, make a trip by motor car these days of March north from Glendale along the coast route to San Francisco.

You will be impressed by the beauty of it all, and inspired to have your relatives and friends see the sight which probably cannot be equalled elsewhere in the wide world.

Southern California, alone, in the winter time is a joy for the eastern tourist, but it grows stale to those who have learned to expect nothing more than sunshine and flowers and ever green foliage.

In contrast, the central coastal section of the state with its deciduous fruit trees now in bloom, its early gardens far advanced and its fields of poppies and wild mustard and larkspur and heather-like sage—all of it is beyond power of description in words.

What the eye can see from a motorcar, a glass encased car or an open touring car, presents a motion picture kaleidescopic in color and utterly different from that registered on the silver screen.

The variety of forests or groves to be found in the progress of the trip is amazing. The multivarious fruits and flowers to be seen, from the tender violet to the blossoming almond orchards, is a revelation.

Surely, you will enjoy, as I have enjoyed, three or four days of perfect pleasure by getting out in the open, in a new car, or an old one, and getting a glimpse of the wonders God has wrought, and man has developed.

The "lame ducks" of congress are being compensated now with appointments as ambassadors and other things at the disposal of President Harding. It would seem that this is a fitting way in which to retire those politicians who have sacrificed private careers to enter the public service. Congressman Horace M. Towner of Iowa is going to Porto Rico as governor general to make good on a job which Mont Reilly of Missouri fumbled, just as Burton Harrison did in the Phillipines.

A fight over the governor's budget bill seems to be scheduled as the opening act of the California legislature's performance, opening Monday at Sacramento.

Already several changes are predicted, the restoration of the charities board and appropriation to carry on the forestry work, also vocational education. It is in matters of education that a large part of the row will center.

From all appearances, however, Will C. Wood, state superintendent of public instruction, has weakened the chances for other school appropriations by his vicious attack on the governor, who has the final word now in budget matters.

Nothing seemingly has been left undone by Mr. Wood to activate all agencies at his command to openly revolt at the very intimation of efficiency with economy. As an educator he has displayed great ability as an unsportsmanlike politician who will resort to anything when cornered, like the little boy with his finger in the pie.

Jim Jeffries, former heavyweight boxing champion, has taken the count in financing a farm at Burbank, it is indicated by his bankruptcy petition. Jim always liked to land a knock-out himself, even to taking his prize stock to livestock shows in an airplane.

All that cost money. It was not economy, especially that kind which is necessary in ranching or stock-raising nowadays. The public applauds, but does not like to pay the bill.

Likewise in our educational system. It is nice to see stately buildings on magnificent sites rise beyond number; it is better to see schools winning athletic contests, staging pageants, teaching anything and everything, but the fickle public is bound to balk when the taxes are increased and the school children come home singing, "Ain't We Got Fun."

It is no funny business earning a living. While fortunes have been made in realty speculations the income and excess profit taxes take all the joy out of making money. And the property owner who must pay the whole bill is perfectly willing—provided he sees the benefit thereof and feels that his dollar has been honestly expended for value received.

Think it over, folks.

Meet on Monday

At the meeting of the Shakespeare Setcion of the Tuesday Afternoon club Monday afternoon with Mrs. E. L. Young of 325 West Milford street, Mrs. Garrett will give an outline of the book "William Shakespeare" by Clemance Dane. The meeting is announced for 2 o'clock.

The section is planning to hold a Shakespeare tea some time in April in the new club house.

Birthday Affair

Probably the most unique social affair of the season took place yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Skelton, 331 East Fairview avenue, when about forty friends gathered in honor of the seventy-ninth birthday of Mrs. Skelton. Of the two score guests who were present all of them had been friends of many years' standing, having been acquainted in Postville, Iowa, more than thirty years ago.

The gathering was a reunion in every sense of the word, some of those present not having seen each other for several decades. Each guest brought a well-filled picnic basket and the day was enjoyed the same as though it had been forty years ago when they were all young together.

Mr. and Mrs. Skelton, who have lived in Glendale for the past five years, were residents in the Iowa city more than forty years, when Mr. Skelton was in business there. The family consists of Mr. and Mrs. Skelton and two daughters, Miss Lenore Skelton, who lives with her parents, and Mrs. Helen Wiedeman of Riverside. They all came to southern California fifteen years ago.

W. C. T. U. Meeting

W. C. T. U. members held their regular business meeting Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Louis Sipple at 230 North Louise street. As Mrs. C. W. Bacon, who was in charge of the afternoon's program, was unable to be present on account of the death of a relative, the president, Mrs. Ruby Smart, presided over the entire meeting.

The federal constitution and the local organization's constitution were thoroughly reviewed and reports from the various departments were given. A very interesting report was given by the department which raised considerable money for the Old Ladies' Home at Highland Park, and Mrs. Smart gave a very interesting talk on "The Union Signal."

This was the first part of the annual session's meetings, the next meeting to take place March 16, at the home of Mrs. R. W. Mottern, 211 North Adams street. At this meeting all officers will make reports for the past year, and the annual election will take place. This will be an all-day session, beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Al Fresco Lunch

A luncheon al fresco is planned for today by Miss Elsie Jensen of 451 Myrtle St. for eastern friends to whom a picnic in March will be a novelty. Miss Jensen and her guests will motor to points of interest in the valley and have lunch under the oaks at Monte Vista park.

The guests of the day are Mrs. M. Boise, Miss Jessie Boise, of Sioux Falls, S. D.; Mrs. Charles Woodruff of Hollywood, Miss Evelyn Dayman of Long Beach.

Will Open Crossing Across P. E. Tracks

Crossings are to be opened across Brand boulevard at Lomita avenue and Maple street, according to a promise made this morning in the office of City Manager W. H. Reeves by L. A. Crooks, paving superintendent of the Pacific Electric.

Mr. Crooks stated that the crushed rock, which has been the cause of delay in the lowering of the tracks, has now been obtained and that the work will be rushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

PARTY HELD FOR MARCIA CROCKER

Parents Mark Daughter's Fourteenth Birthday in Verdugo Home

The new home of Dr. and Mrs. H. B. Crocker at 2820 Oak Glen road, about a hundred yards north of the pavilion in Verdugo park, was the scene of a merry party last night in honor of the fourteenth birthday of their daughter, Miss Marcia Crocker, who is a freshman at Glendale Union high school.

The evening was spent largely in playing games. John Copeland won first prize for pinning the tail on the donkey. Miss Gertrude Barnard, who pinned the tail on the window sill, won the booby prize. Graham Young was lucky enough to make five successful trips across the room balancing peanuts on a knife amid much excitement. Nathan Finch had a hard time to make one trip.

"Winkum" was another game which found great favor with the boys and girls. It was found that some girls were quite expert at the art, while some boys could not wink at all unless they blinked both eyes at once.

Dancing to Victrola records occupied the later part of the evening. Partners found it easy to fox-trot upon the soft carpets.

Cut Birthday Cake

The large birthday cake, which accompanied the ice cream, was trimmed with pink rose buds of sugar, and inscribed "Marcia's Fourteenth Birthday." It carried fourteen green candles.

Out of town guests were Mrs. L. A. Lesserman and two daughters, Miss Nina Lesserman and Miss Jean Lesserman of Hollywood. The movie city was represented also by Arthur T. Jacobs, assistant cameraman for Mary Pickford.

A special guest was Ethel Baker, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Baker of 1857 Alpha road.

Many of the young people were accompanied by their mothers. Guests of the party were: Mrs. George H. Brown and daughter, Miss Bernice Brown; Mrs. H. W. Yarick and daughter, Miss Marjorie Yarick; Mrs. Reed Heustis and daughter, Miss Betty Heustis; Mrs. A. R. Merrick and daughter, Miss Marjorie Merrick; Mrs. Nellie M. Barnard and daughter, Miss Gertrude Barnard; Mrs. R. A. J. Phillips and daughter, Miss Marjorie Phillips; Miss Marjorie Nielson and her sister, Miss Winona Nielson; Miss Marie Warren, Miss Josephine Franklin, Mrs. Emma Clendennin and son, Francis Clendennin; Mrs. Grace Gardner and son, Donald; James Moffat, John Copeland, George Butterly, Graham Young, Nathan Finch and Francis Morgan.

SCHOOLS DEMAND MORE FACILITIES

Present Plant Inadequate to Care for Increase in Glendale Pupils

Two times two is four. During the past three years the number of grammar school classrooms have increased 98 per cent while the number of children in attendanc has increased 178 per cent. School facilities must be increased unless parents desire half day school sessions.

Richardson D. White, superintendent of school, emphasized these four facts yesterday noon in the banquet room of the Citizens' Building at the weekly luncheon of the Glendale Kiwanis Club.

The population of Glendale is now over 35,000, according to Mark Keppel who has found that ten times the average number of children in attendance in the elementary school system is a reliable means of estimating the total population. Mr. White called attention to the rejoicing in 1920 when the federal census revealed the fact that the population had increased from 3700 to 13,000 in the previous decade.

"There hasn't been anything like a corresponding increase in school rooms," asserted Mr. White. "The local school system absolutely has reached the breaking point."

The responsibility of the public schools to produce good citizens was commented upon by Mr. White. He expressed an opinion that the schools are most important, next to homes, in the development of the younger generation.

"It has seemed to me that one of the principal things that you are working for is good citizenship," he remarked. "I feel quite sure that you are interested in the natural point of beginning good citizenship, and that is with the schools.

'It is a wonderful and tremendous responsibility that is handed to the public schools. We realize and recognize it. Therefore, I say that the public schools have a wonderful opportunity to influence children and make good citizens of them."

E. F. Sanders, assistant secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, expressed his interest in the approaching grammar school bond issue for $500,000.

Gets Back Articles Stolen 2 Years Ago

LOS ANGELES, March 3.—Even thieves become conscience-stricken on rare occasions, and as a result H. C. Laffrenzen, Huntington Park baker, today was a watch and ring to the good. The articles were taken from Laffrenzen's safe two years ago, and yesterday the owner received them back by parcel post. War savings stamps amounting to $50 and $150 in cash which were taken, were not included in the package sent by the thief.

THEATRES

The GLENDALE

Five acts of standard vaudeville are on the boards of the Glendale Theatre today. The headliner is "The Grouch Killers," an assorted line of nonsense put on by the celebrated Orpheus Comedy Four. The other four features are "Singing and Talking," with Conhoy & Leigh; "The Boob and the Girl," with Jack & Flo Jackson; "A Pleasing Pot Pourri," with Evans & May, and "A Dancing Oddity, with Cecil North.

The film that goes with the above bill is "Good Men and True," featuring Harry Carey.

Beginning tomorrow (Sunday) comes the great F. B. O. attraction, "The Third Alarm," a sweeping melodramatic classic on the scale of "Way Down East."

The T. D. & L.

"Nobody's Money," the Paramount film now showing at the T. D. & L. Theatre, is an excellent production and gives Jack Holt an opportunity to do some fine acting. He is supported by Wanda Hawley and a strong cast.

The story is of the fast-moving comedy-drama type, and concerns efforts to trace down the imaginary author, "Douglas Roberts," created by two young writers as a pen name. The government decides that Douglas must pay an income tax! And then he gets in bad through a libelous article signed with his name! From then on complications come thick and fast.

The comedy is Buster Keaton in "My Wife's Relation."

Beginning tomorrow (Sunday) the feature is the Parmount production, "The World's Applause."

Woman's Page

WHAT THE WIFE HAS

"But what have I that she hasn't. Why should he prefer me to her so far as attractiveness goes?"

A middle aged wife asked me that question. She is a woman of about 40. Her husband, who is about the same age, has been much interested in a young stenographer in his office, a girl of twenty-two.

"I know," says the wife, who is an unusually broadminded, thoughtful woman, "that as far as morality goes, he is supposed to keep on loving me because he promised to. And I don't believe he ever would be really unfaithful to me. But I mean aside from all that, why shouldn't he be attracted to her more than to me. I think I was as pretty as she is at her age but that was 20 years ago. She is pretty right now. And she is enthusiastic, and she loves sports and has the strength for them that I haven't after having four children. And above all she is young. Her skin is fresh and her eyes are bright, —just as mine were 20 years ago.

As Many Women See It

"I don't think I have neglected myself the way the women in stories do. I have done exercises and tried to take good care of my skin, but a woman of 40 can't look 20 unless she spends all her time on that sort of thing. And I have had four children and run a house and take an interest in my husband's business and in the neighborhood and I couldn't spend all my time that way.

"And yet when I look at her and talk with her and feel how charming she is, I wouldn't blame him if he did fall in love with her. Why shouldn't he? What have I that she hasn't? Why should he prefer me to her as far as attractiveness goes?"

I imagine there are many women who have faced things as they are, and asked themselves that question.

And answered it with secret tears and bitter resentment at the passing of the years.

I do not wonder at the tears but I do not think they need be the only answer. Far from it.

The Wife's Advantage

If a husband and wife have been happy together, have been friends and companions, there is a great deal that the older woman can give that the girl, however pretty, however charming, however intelligent, cannot give.

There is between the husband and wife the kind of understanding that grows through years of loving. She is quick in sympathetic reaction to his interests, to his moods, to his line of thought. He does not have to explain to her. If he wants to talk on any subject with her they have the background of former talks and do not have to start at the ABC. They know each other's vocabulary, they know each other's danger signals, each other's antipathies and sensitive spots. If she wants to use this knowledge wisely she can give him a sympathetic understanding, a response of the mind, that the girl however intelligent, however eager cannot give.

A man said to me once: "You talk to these young girls a while and enjoy them and then suddenly you get talking about things that interest you and you find you aren't getting any response. They are saying 'Yes' and 'No' and smiling but you know you are talking to a blank."

A Background Shared

And then besides, there is a background of tenderness, of family catchwords, of jokes shared, of memories, of hard times and happy times gone through together. You have that big bond between you that cannot be between him and her.

There is a paragraph in a recent novel that comes to me in this connection. The man's wife is very ill and he realizes that after all he does care more for her and all she stands for than for the other woman and what she means. Doubtless you have read it but I will quote it:

"But now he did not compare her with Tanis. She was not merely a woman to be contrasted with other women, but his own self, and, though he might criticize her and nag her, it was only as he might criticize and nag himself, interestedly, unpatronizingly, without the expectation of changing,—or any real desire to change, —the eternal essence."

Mrs. C.: "I have found, when mayonnaise separates in making, and will not thicken, that if the oil and egg-yolk mixture is left standing for an hour or so, the egg all settles to the bottom. Then the superfluous oil can be drained or skimmed off and a fresh start made with fresh oil. I never work in the old oil until the dressing is well started. I do not know if this would work when the whole egg, rather than just the yolk, is used; but I have used the trick successfully as described above."

G. E. G.: "Peanut Butter Bread: Two cups of flour, one cup each of peanut butter and of sweet milk two teaspoons each of salt and baking powder, two eggs, one tablespoon of sugar. Sift the flour with the baking powder and salt and put in a bowl; add the peanut butter and sugar, mixing well. Then add the beaten eggs, which you have mixed with the milk, and beat well. Turn into a greased pan and let rise ten minutes, then bake for 35 minutes in a moderate oven. Here is another fine recipe.

Good Sugar Cookies: (These are different—so crisp and delicious. To be rolled very thin). Rub one cup of butter or other shortening into five cups of flour with the finger-tips. In another bowl beat two eggs and add to them two cups of sugar and two-thirds of a cup of either sour milk or buttermilk in which you have previously dissolved one teaspoon of soda. Beat all together then add salt to taste and one whole nutmeg grated. Pour this liquid mixture into the dry flour mixture, mix, then turn out onto a floured board. Roll, cut and bake in a hot oven for eight or ten minutes. Some of the cookies can be filled with jam (using two cookies together) and others may have cocoanut, caraway or ground nuts rolled into them before baking."

BIG PROFITS IN RESALE OF LOTS

Owner Sells One Lot Within Three Weeks at Net Advance of $1200

The Wing Orange Grove tract on East Colorado street continues to show big profits in lot re-sales, states Marvin Smith, tract manager, who reports the turnover of Lot 46, northeast corner of Colorado and Wing, for a net profit of $1200 in less than three weeks.

Lot 47, immediately adjoining it to the east, and fronting on Colorado street, has re-sold for a net profit of $700. While Lot 45, northwest corner of Colorado and Wing, brought a profit to the seller of $1110 in twenty days, as previously announced.

"These startling profits, derived in so quick a time, are causing attention to focus on the Wing Orange Grove tract," says Mr. Smith, "with the result that we can already see we will be sold out well in advance of our earliest anticipation.

"And, with Wing street now completely through from Colorado to Maple, we look to see the balance of the tract go fast."

The Wing Orange Grove tract is bounded on the north by Colorado street, on the south by Windsor road, on the east by Porter street, and on the west by Sycamore Canon road.

The prices on the lots, Mr. Smith states, range from $1400 to $2200, with easy terms of one-fourth down and the balance in three years.

The tract office, at 1200 East Colorado, is open daily.

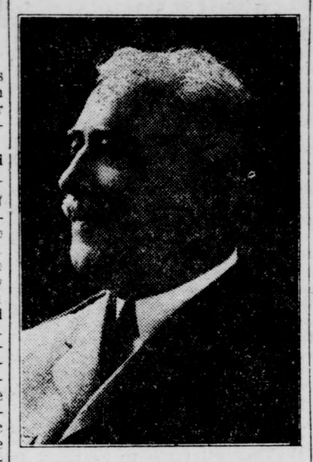
Bible Conference To Start On March 12



REV. R. A. HADDEN, who will direct a Bible conference at the Glendale Presbyterian church, beginning March 12, it is announced today.

Beginning March 12, Dr. Robert A. Hadden will conduct a Bible conference at the Glendale Presbyterian church. Sessions will be held at 2:30 and 7:30 o'clock each day, except Saturday, for two weeks.

Dr. Hadden was formerly prominent in railroad circles and held several responsible positions of honor and responsibility. When he gave up railroad work he was in line for the presidency of the Great Northern system. But he was called to his present work, and for years has been on the lecture platform, is a well-known author, and has also been pastor of a number of prominent Presbyterian churches.

Now In Texas

At present Dr. Hadden is holding a conference in Waco, Texas, and he has just closed very successful conferences in Dallas and Oklahoma City. Dr. Hadden is declared to be one of the greatest Bible teachers in America."

"He is a man of ripe scholarship and profound knowledge of the world, and is a firm believer in the fundamentals of the great book, which he loves and teaches with such fascination and power. No one ever tires of listening to him, and hundreds have testified to the value of his great lectures in their personal religious life," says Rev. Tinning of the Presbyterian church.

FORMAL OPENING FOR MESA CREST

Twining & Myers to Launch New Subdivision for Sale on Sunday

The recent announcement of the organization of the firm of Twining & Myers, real estate subdividers, is almost coincident with another announcement affecting a deal that results in making available for home builders and investors a large tract of choice residential property known as Mesa Crest.

Formal opening of this tract is scheduled for Sunday, March 4, at which time the first unit will be placed on sale. Mesa Crest is a part of the well known Lanterman estate and comprises nearly 400 acres.

Mesa Crest lies upon the top of the ridge and the lots are perfectly level, while one of the most wonderful scenic views imaginable is afforded. On one side are the San Rafael, Sierra Madre and Verdugo mountains, while in another direction are the La Canada and La Crescenta valleys.

Profits Assured

"Investors who take advantage of our opening prices are bound to make very satisfactory profits in the immediate future," declared Mr. Twining yesterday, after he had pointed out the fact that no other property of similar character had ever been offered the public at such low prices.

Prediction that the part of this property lying along Verdugo road would double within the next eighteen months has been made.

Work on the improvements now being installed in this tract are progressing nicely and are being pushed forward to an early completion.

A paved road running north from Verdugo road will connect with the Michigan state highway, thereby making a straight road into Alta, Canada, it is declared.

Strong Sales Force

Twining & Myers are long experienced in the real estate business. Mr. Twining was for more than nine years general sales manager of the F. P. Newport Company, while Mr. Myers was his assistant sales manager with the same firm. A splendid sales force has been organized and numbered among the salesmen are several men who were formerly with the Newport Company.

The new firm expects to dispose of its first offering in record time and propose to go right ahead with other units of the Lanterman estate as fast as they can be sold.

BEAUTY CHATS

EDNA KENT FORBES

WAYS TO GAIN FAT

you can afford. The result is the most delicious drink you have ever tasted with a calorie value well over 500, equal in nourishment to a meal but more easily digested. Take this at bedtime.

Discouraged.—As your doctor has already said that you are causing these facial eruptions by eating too many sweets. I do not see how I could do better than to tell you to limit your taste for these things, and to follow his advice about simplifying your diet. Try it for a few weeks anyway, and look for an improvement in your complexion.

G. V.—I do not think that steaming the hair would cause it to curl. For some unaccountable reason some people who have naturally curly hair have periods for several months at a time when the hair will not curl at all.

For instance, hair that is very curly during the summer, especially during damp weather, will become quite straight in the middle of the winter after a few months of our over heated buildings. We also know of the hair that will not curl at all if there is any dampness, yet it will stay in curl at all other times. After these winter months have passed it is quite likely that your hair will fall right into the same natural waves that it always had.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Not nearly so many people write me asking how to get fat as how to get thin. Thinness is fashionable, which is fortunate, since it is a great deal harder to put on flesh than to take it off. It is obvious that you cannot gain on what you do not eat, therefore under-eating must reduce you. Whereas over-eating, unless scientifically done, is more apt to give you indigestion and pimples than the needed pounds.

So the thing to do, if you wish to gain flesh, is to eat easily assimilated foods of a very high caloric value, that is foods that will make fat. I would suggest that you try any one of the following whichever suits best your appetite or digestion. Weigh yourself before-hand, then weigh yourself regularly once a week for the next several months.

Put two tablespoonfuls of olive oil into a small wineglassful of grape juice and swallow this just before luncheon and dinner. This will not destroy your normal appetite for food but will give you a lot of easily assimilated pure fat.

Another idea is to drink milk with as much cream in as you can afford with each meal and at bedtime. If you do this between meals it will destroy your appetite and its own good effect.

Another idea is to make the following delicious mixture. Beat up an egg and beat it into a glass of cold milk into which two tablespoonfuls of malted milk have previously been melted. Add one or two tablespoonfuls of chocolate syrup, chocolate which has been melted with sugar and hot water (several weeks' supply can always be kept on hand.) Add to this as much plain or whipped cream as

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

X. Y. Z.: No, it is not necessary for you to gain in weight just because you are going through the change of life. You say you do not understand calories. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and four cents in stamps, for our little pamphlet on reducing. That explains calories at length.

Briefly, a calorie is simply the unit of the measure of heat and of the energy or fuel value of foods. (Just as a yard is the unit of measure of length.) Every food has food units or calories in them.

An ounce of fat is approximately 250 C's. An ounce of protein (the meat element of food) and of carbohydrate (the starches and sugars) are 120 C's. This is with all of the water removed. It is easier to remember calories in the 100 C's portions than any other way because there are so many ordinary servings of food that have 100 C's.

For instance, one large slice of bread one-half inch thick, a large egg, a piece of lean meat 2x4x½ inch thick, three full cubes of sugar, five ounces of milk, ten ounces of skim milk, approximately one pound of the watery vegetables such as lettuce, cucumbers, celery or tomatoes; a moderate sized potato, one pat of butter (a level tbsp.), a tablespoonful of oil, each has 100 C's.

A person needs from 1800 to 3000 C's a day, depending upon their activities. The average needs would be about 2200 C's a day. One pound of fat is approximately 4000 C's. So to reduce one-fourth of a pound a day, you have to eat 1000 C's less than you need to maintain you in order to draw on your own fat to supply that 1000 C's.

The average person will lose about one-quarter of a pound a day on 1200 C's. That's fast enough for anyone to lose. If you go on a three day liquid diet not totaling over 500 or 600 C's, that will shrink your stomach so that it does not demand so much food to satisfy it and you may lose from five to ten pounds during that time. That gives you a glorious start. But send for the pamphlet. That will explain more in detail. You have to do some ten or fifteen minutes sitting-up exercise, too, if there is no reason why you should not exercise.

C. K.: You will probably always be constipated as long as you continue to take physics. Send a s.a.s.e and repeat your request for our article on constipation.

Do you masticate your food thoroughly? Sometimes the two or three weeks' milk diet is curative in cases of chronic gastritis, but it is better that you put yourself under a specialist's care rather than try to treat yourself.

Mrs. S.: If you have too much milk and your breasts fill up and are painful, you had better bandage your breasts up with a firm brassiere or bandage. After the baby nurses express out the milk that is still in the breasts by grasping them a little bit beyond the nipple and gently pressing, going towards the nipple. You must not let your baby nurse irregularly. That will be bad for the baby and for you. How about your diet? Eating too much? Try eating less and see if that does not help.

Mrs. K.: The fact that your baby stops crying while you are with him shows that he simply craves company. If he is the perfect weight and measurement and in the perfect health you say he is, you need not be worried by letting him discover that crying does not bring your presence. If crying caused ruptures in boy babies as easily as your neighbors seem to think, all of them would have ruptures. If there is no congenital weakness you need not worry about it.

I am glad you like the Adorable Sockums. I shall have it published in book form for you after a while.

BUICK SIX 45 IS FAVORITE MODEL

Beauty and Efficiency Are Embodied in Latest Model Displayed

Tanner & Hall, Ltd., 237 South Brand boulevard, local distributors for the Buick line, are centering their efforts at present on the new Buick 45 six-cylinder touring car, of which a model is on display in their salesrooms and which bears out the reputation that this firm has gained for building cars of the type that not only please the eye but that win friends by the sterling character of their performance under all conditions.

The new model 45 embraces every characteristic of the sturdy Buick line, according to Ray Galvin, manager of the company, and its combination of stability and distinctive beauty, as well as the completeness with which it is equipped with every accessory to meet the needs of the motorist, is one that appeals irresistibly to the buyer who wants style and service.

Coupled with the Buick valve-in-head motor, with its record for unvarying service, is the beauty of its upholstery, the many new refinements that make for riding comfort and pleasure, and the moderate price that is only made possible by a mammoth production in one of the biggest and most efficiently equipped plants in the United States today.

ORDERS DEPLETE RESERVE STOCKS

Studebaker Buyers Asked to Order Now, Say Packer Officials

Studebaker buyers who wish to make sure of getting prompt delivery of their new cars should place their orders now, according to officials of the Packer Auto company, 245 South Brand boulevard, who have been notified that the reserve stocks of cars are being depleted to meet the demand that is being made on all models at this time.

Paul G. Hoffman, the Los Angeles distributor, is authority for the statement that the reserve of from 500 to 1000 cars that are kept on hand at the factory at all times has been reduced materially by the steady demand for all kinds of Studebaker cars, and especially in the closed models.

Arrangements that have been made by the Packer Auto company with the factory, however, assure the delivery of orders placed now at an early date, and the firm hopes, by the end of this month, to be caught up on most of the orders that have already been sent in and to be in a position to give quicker delivery than has been possible for several months past. It is essential, however, that those who contemplate buying Studebakers allow as much time as possible in order that their orders may be filled, as the growing demand for these cars is setting a record that has never before been known in the history of the Studebaker plant.

PLAN TO PROTECT YUCCA BLOSSOMS

Warning to Motorists Not to Molest Blooms Soon Due To Appear

There is a lot of trouble in store for motorists who pick yucca blossoms this year, according to a warning just issued by the Automobile Club of Southern California.

According to Los Angeles County Forestry department officials, the yuccas are just coming into bloom on the hills of the southern part of the state and will be more wonderful this year than ever before and just because they are going to be more wonderful the authorities are going to be more strict in arresting motorists who pick them.

Every auto party which is found by forestry officials in Los Angeles county carrying a yucca bloom in the car will be arrested without question at once, according to S. J. Flintham of the forestry department. Other counties in the southern part of the state are at this time considering ordinances making the picking of yucca blooms a misdemeanor .

Fade in Short Time

In Los Angeles county there is a law prohibiting the cutting of Yucca stalks in the hills. It is pointed out that the huge yucca blooms when picked wilt and fade within a very short space of time and are useleess for decorative purposes. This fact has, however, not deterred motorists from picking the flowers in the past, but now the long arm of the law is going to reach out and do a little deterring on its own account, says the Auto club.

The yucca is a very vital factor in making the state attractive to eastern visitors, and club officials declare that every resident of California will co-operate with the authorities in preserving the yucca in its native state, and protecting one of the beauties of the West.

Arizona Justice Has Set of Traffic Rules

BISBEE, Ariz., March 3.—Justice Craig has formulated some regulations for traffic within his precinct. They follow:

Mr. Motorist—Drive slow. You may run over and kill someone; then the coroner will be looking you over at the inquest.

Mr. Road Hog—Don't try to take all the roadway, for, if you do, the law will take you, sooner or later.

Mr. Speeder—Don't try to put it over the motor cop. He rides more horsepower than you do, and will catch up with you eventually. The court will do the rest. Here is how your medicine looks: First offense, $5 (may suspend;) second, $10 (will not suspend;) third $40; fourth, thirty days (no mercy;) fifth, sixty days; sixth, six mouths (every day of it;) seventh, the court will take your old boat.

ANOTHER CLOSED CAR

DETROIT, March 3.—Announcement of the new Hupmobile two-passenger coupe makes three closed cars that the Hup Motor Car Corporation will carry in its 1923 line. The other two are the four-passenger coupe and the sedan. These, supplemented by the touring car, roadster and the recently announced special touring and special roadster, comprise the 1923 Hupmobile line of seven models.

Health of Family Is Greatly Helped By Use of Motor

THE automobile has kept the family together as a whole, added to its efficiency in various ways, improved its health and, above all, kept the members together a greater part of the time.

The highway and motor vehicle has permitted bus lines to be operated that take children to more than 12,000 schools throughout the country of a much better type than the one-room schoolhouse of old, stated Alfred Reeves, general manager, National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, in an address.

MOUNTAIN ROADS IN GOOD SHAPE

Not Much Damage Is Done To Highways Back of San Bernardino

REDLANDS, March 3.—Little damage has been done to the mountain roads by storms this year, and it is believed that in the spring the country will have little trouble in getting the roads in good shape for the heavy summer traffic.

The Big Bear valley roads are the most important. The desert road is open now, and has been all winter, and it will need little or no work in the summer. The road to Bear valley known as the Crest road will probably be the last to be opened because there are always a number of soft places in that road which will not bear traffic until the snows are all gone and the sun has been out for some time.

Paving Mill Creek

People are greatly interested in the Mill Creek road, for most of the traffic to Bear valley is over that road. It will be in good shape early in the spring unless there are late storms. The road is now being paved as far as the first control and soon the county prison gang can be placed at work widening and repairing the washes in the road between the two controls.

The new road on the Clark grade has been packed by winter rains and snows and will be in fine shape for summer travel, it is said. This road does away with the worst part of the grade.

Favors Brain Tests For Drivers of Cars

Dr. Adolf Meyer, director of the Phipps Clinic, in Baltimore, Md., and one of the most eminent psychiatrists in the country, as in favor of brain tests for operators of automobiles. According to Dr. Meyer, all persons are not equally fitted to drive an automobile. In an emergency, one man may get an idea quickly, another slowly. Uncertain or wavering impulses undoubtedly cause many accidents. Tests for driving ability should be varied according to the work the drivers are called on to do.

ROAD ON CITY WALL

The old city wall of Canton, China, now serves as a top surface for twenty-eight miles of highway, over which automobiles and motor busses are running.

NEED CHANGE IN TIRE ESTIMATES

New Table on Situation Shows Manufacturers Make Mistakes

AKRON, Ohio, March 3.—That the tire dealer can depend upon selling probably not more than two and one-half tires per car to each of his regular customers, and that he must figure his transient trade in addition to that, is the revelation of a new tire consumption table which has been prepared in the rubber city.

The table shows that since 1915 American cars as a whole have not averaged more than three and one-half tires each for operation, and it was the fallacy that each car would use on an average of six tires which created the surplus of tires on hand when the depression broke the market.

For a long time it was estimated by the best authorities in the rubber center that at least eight tires would be used annually by the average automobile.

Replacement Demands

During the last year when a total of 12,281,000 automobiles and trucks were registered a total of 36,400,000 tires were produced. After deducting 11,000,000 for original equipment, it is found that the demand for replacement was only slightly in excess of two tires a year.

During 1921, with 10,524,000 automobiles in operation, the average per car consumption was 1.9 on the basis of production, but sales were somewhat higher because of the surplus which was carried into the year from 1920.

In 1920, 2.7 tires were produced for every car in operation; in 1913, 2.3 tires; in 1918, 3.4 tires; in 1917, 3.3 tires; in 1916, 3.1 and in 1915, 3.5 tires per car.

January Output Near Quarter Million Cars

NEW YORK, March 3.—Motor car business is running far ahead of last year as indicated by an output of 243,000 cars and trucks in January. This is a gain of 164 per cent over last year. The best previous January was in 1920, when approximately 168,000 cars were made.

"The increasing popularity of closed cars and the improvement in curtains for touring models is distributing the buying season for motor vehicles," said W. E. Metzger, chairman of traffic committee of National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, and this making for heavy winter business which previously was the year's light season."

Truck exports in December were 1789 as compared with 534 in December, 1921, a gain of 234 per cent. Car exports also made heavy gains, increasing from 2920 a year ago to 7180 in December, 1922.

Over Forty Thousand Auto Dealers in U. S.

There are now 40,889 automobile and motor truck dealers in the United States. Of these 2485 are in cities with populations between 100,000 and 500,000, 8192 are in cities with populations between 10,000 and 100,000, while 26,371, or more than half the total are in small towns having a population of less than 10,000.

Filling Stations Are Scarce Among Swiss

Gasoline filling stations are as yet unknown in Switzerland. Gasoline distribution is made by garages, where the procedure is from the barrels in which it is kept to the liter measure, and then into the tanks of the vehicles.

Forty Per Cent of Cars Owned in Six States

Six states in the Union have nearly 40 per cent of all the motor vehicles registered in the country. They are New York, Ohio, California, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Michigan, with a combined total of 4,898,863 cars.

MAY PASS LAST YEAR

LANSING, March 3. — While 1922 was the banner year for the automobile industry, January of this year bore out predictions of leaders that 1923 will pass last year, according to Guy H. Peasley, general sales manager of the Olds Motor Works, who asserts that January's production of his company was 139 per cent greater than a year ago.

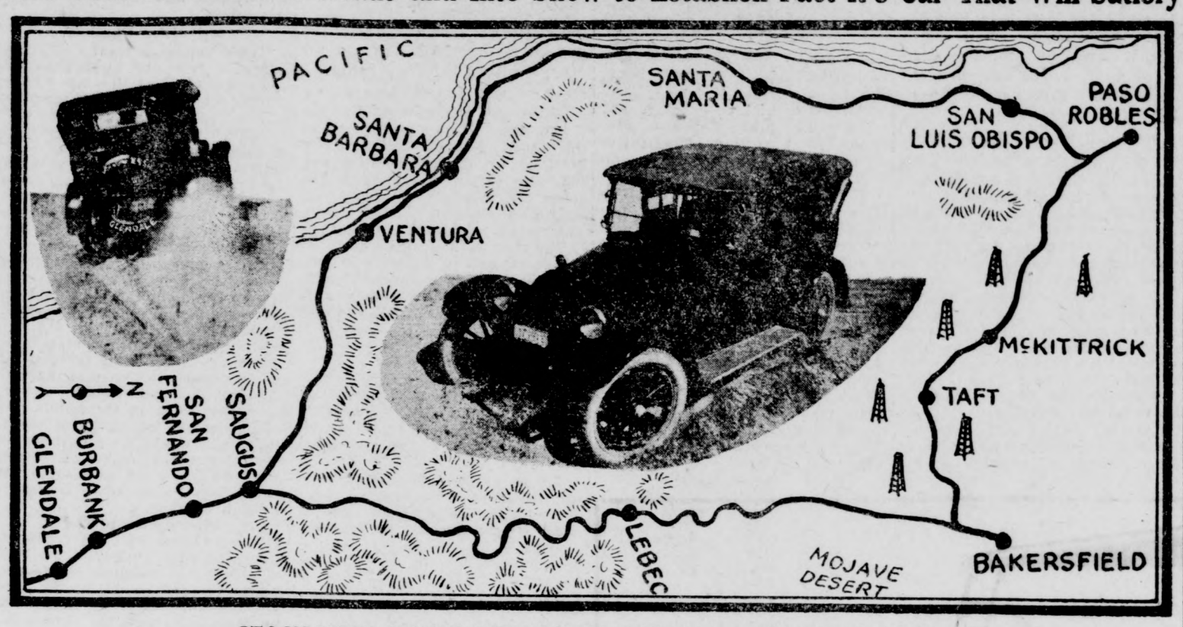
STOCK NASH FOUR GOES ON ENDURANCE AND ECONOMY JOURNEY

Goes Over All Kinds of Roads and Into Snow to Establish Fact It's Car That Will Satisfy



STOCK NASH MAKES REMARKABLE RECORD FOR ENDURANCE

This picture shows the stock Nash—two views of it—making its endurance and economy trip over all kinds of roads. This map shows the route and the accompanying story gives the details of the Nash car's most unusual run.

By H. THOMPSON RICH
Of The Evening News Staff

A stock Nash Four touring car from the E. B. Sutton sales rooms at 112 South Maryland avenue rolled back into Glendale covered with dust and laurels, after a gruelling test run that smashed records all along the line and demonstrated clearly the remarkable economy and endurance of this sturdy car.

Over snow-packed mountain ranges whose passes were sheets of ice, down into basking valleys veined with superb boulevards, out across hot wastes of sage and chaparral, over deep-rutted dirt roads a hundred miles long at a stretch—more than equal at all times to the trying conditions imposed upon it, the Nash Four, with this member of The Evening News staff as a passenger, roared its steady way to a total of 531 miles.

Makes Fuel Record

Twenty-seven gallons of gasoline was the total fuel consumption for the trip, an average of nineteen and two thirds miles per gallon. Not once was the hood lifted or the radiator cap removed, no oil or water being added during the entire run; and an examination on the return showed plenty of both to be remaining.

The dash took off from outside the Nash agency at the above address on South Maryland avenue. Turning onto the San Fernando road, we headed for Bakersfield through the chill, early haze of what soon developed into a day of bright sunshine, with a stiff wind that toughened up the going but at the same time added zest to it.

We first struck snow on the west side of the ridge, near the crest; and fifteen minutes later, coming down the east slope, we had plenty, the entire route for miles being covered with a hard-frozen crust as slippery as wet glass. It was on this treacherous stretch that the car began to demonstrate its rigidity and road-holding qualities.

Amid Black Gold

We went through Bakersfield to Taft, along the floor of a great valley bristling with oil wells, and on to McKittrick through the heart of California's largest nugget of "flowing gold," over ground fairly oozing with twenty years' excretions of that energetic syrup.

The first few miles of this road were fairly good, but once we had passed McKittrick we soon encountered plain unvarnished dirt, continuing without interruption until we reached the outskirts of Paso Robles, for a total of 120 miles of torturous byways almost akin to the "rocky road to Dublin."

Every telegraph pole for scores of miles along this run was rubbed smooth by the vast herds of cattle and sheep that graze these

MAKES REPORT ON LICENSE FINANCE

Counties of State Will Receive Half of Fund For Maintenance

The semi-annual statement of receipts of the division of motor vehicles show a total net collection of $476,150.96, which amount is divided equally between the counties from which it was collected and the State Highway Commission.

The money turned over to the highway commission is to be used for maintenance purposes on the chain of state highways, while that returned to the counties is to be used for county road purposes only. This makes an amount of $238,075.48 for each.

Will H. Marsh, chief of the division, shows that 114,297 automobiles were registered in the period from August 1, 1922, to January 31, 1923. There were registered also 2075 motorcycles, 4226 trucks and 926 trailers.

Cost of Department

During the last half of the year but $401 was spent in maintaining the department out of funds thus received from registrations. The balance necessary for maintenance of the department was taken from the collections in the transfer and operator's fund. The cost of running the department during the last six months of the year was $418,524.89.

The annual report of collections of the department shows a gross amount of money received from all sources during 1922 of $8,384,606.40. Refunds made, brought the net amount to $8,359,905.29.

There were registered in 1922.

Predict Advance in Prices of Motor Cars

DETROIT, March 3.—Predictions that the tide of motor-car prices is to turn and proceed upward are being made by many automobile distributors and dealers. Every market indication points to a rise in the price of motor cars before the selling season just being entered has waned, they point out.

"It is very significant that with some weeks to go before the usual spring buying starts, the big producers are unable to satisfy the demand," said one prominent dealer. "In the last two years we have watched the prices of motor cars gradually reduce to a point where it is not possible to drop further."

The same conditions that govern the prices of the rest of the world of industry control the prices of automobiles and the general conditions point out the rising costs of labor and material.

All these things being given careful thought, it may be found that the predictions of price advances made by distributors and dealers are well supported and worthy of the deep consideration of all planning to purchase cars.

GIVES AUTO ESTIMATE

LANSING, March 3.—A. D. Pluzhoff, general manager of the J. W. Leavitt Company, which is the California distributor for the Oldsmobile, has telegraphed the Olds factory at Lansing an estimate for the California requirements for March and April. These estimates call for the business of this coming March to be exactly 150 per cent of the deliverries to California during March 1922, and April next to be 144 per cent of the deliveries of April, 1922.

ALLOWANCE NOT FAIR TO BUYER

National Association Says Trading Plan Is Unjust And Buyers Suffer

ST. LOUIS, March 3.—Condemnation of the "used car trading allowance," by the National Automobile Dealers' Association, one of the features of the annual convention in Chicago, has created an unusual amount of discussion throughout the industry. Many indications of this reached the association headquarters in the last week.

The association declares the "trading allowance" is unfair competition and a deceit on the buying public. The "trading allowance" is an arrangement between a factory and its dealers, by which the dealer can trade used cars in deals for new cars, at from $200 to $600 more than the old car actually is worth. It is well known throughout the industry that trading allowances have been made on cars for which the list price had been padded by an amount equal to the amount of the trading allowance. The person who pays cash for such automobiles is paying a penalty that is escaped by the person who trades in an old car on the deal.

Resolutions adopted in the convention condemned "forceful feeding" of new cars to the dealer under threat of cancellation of his contract; recommended that dealers study their own territory market to determine exactly those automobiles which are in popular demand and to restrict his purchase of used cars to that list and at such prices that will permit of resale with profit to the dealer.

G. G. G. Peckham, president of the Ohio Buick Company, Cleveland, O., was elected president of the N. A. D. A. John A. Butler head of the Butler Motor Company, Dodge Brothers dealers in Kansas City, was advanced from second to first vice-president.

POSTAL ROUTE AUTOS

A bill has been introduced in Washington authorizing automobile rural postal routes of from thirty-six to seventy-five miles.

TREES BEAUTIFY STATE HIGHWAYS

W. E. Glendenning, Noted in Work, Gives Views on Road Improvements

The average Glendale motorist who has motored over the Ridge Route will remember the long, straight stretch of highway extending from the foot of the Grape Vine across the so-called desert toward Bakersfield. They will recall that many years ago the highway was set out on either side to trees, and for a long time the trees were neglected. Some survived the neglect, stunted. Others were near watered places, and today are young giants casting a friendly shade.

Some day, now that Kern county officials have taken to giving better care to the trees, this thirty-mile stretch will be one of the most noted drives of the state, noted not for its barrenness as now, but for its beauty, summer and winter.

Report By Expert

And all of this recalls the report made by W. E. Glendenning, California highway tree expert, who, speaking of similar plantings over the state, says that under his department many thousands of trees have been saved. In part the tree man writes as follows:

"It is with considerable satisfaction we are able to record renewed interest in shade tree planting throughout the state of California. This awakened interest particularly applies to the widespread activity in planting along the state highway system. Scarcely a day passes but some request is received for information relative to procedure for planting along some certain unit of road.

"These communications have been coming in for the past two years and have become the means whereby co-operation has been established between individuals, clubs and civic organizations and the state forester's office. As a result of this correspondence, permits have been granted and there has been planted in all approximately 120 miles of road, or 240 miles of trees. Add to this easily

GREAT GAINS FOR SALES IN STATE

Los Angeles County Shows Large Increase; Figures Indicate Prosperity

The new year has had an auspicious opening for the motor car industry in California as figures released in the February issue of Motor Registration News, published in Oakland, testified.

Total sales of automobiles and trucks last month aggregated 15,109 compared to a total of 6694 in January, 1922. The increase amounts to 126 per cent and it is the largest percentage gain ever made in any single month in California's automotive history, according to Motor News statisticians.

Southern California purchased 9410 motor vehicles, a gain of 115 per cent over its January, 1922, volume and the northern forty-seven counties bought 5699, an improvement for this section of 147 per cent.

Remarkable Gains

The state gain in motor car sales was 127 per cent while the truck industry moved ahead to the tune of 111 per cent.

Remarkable gains were made by many of the fourteen leading counties, some making forward strides to the extent of 374 per cent.

Evidence of this fact can be gleaned from a comparison of the following summary:

County—	1922	1923
Los Angeles	3231	6763
San Francisco	483	1340
Alameda	463	872

NATIONAL PARKS DRAW MOTORIST

Record Season Ahead of 'Playgrounds,' Predicts Automobile Club

It's no joke, this "seeing America first" business, according to messages now being received at the Auto Club of Southern California from various national parks of America.

Park superintendents are getting all "het up" about the number of auto owners who are going to pour into such big play grounds as the Yellowstone, Glacier, Sequoia, Grant and Yosemite national reserves right after the thaw sets in. One park superintendent, Mr. Albright of Yellowstone, says that he expects 125,000 people there this year. This would be 25,000 more than visited Yellowstone last year.

It is not unusual, says the auto club, for hundreds of motrists in this part of the state to begin planning their summer trips as early as March, and the club touring bureau is preparing a whole lot of first-hand information on road conditions leading to the national parks throughout America. It has been found that in order to complete a successful trip of some distance, the motorist should begin to lay his plans at least a month or two before he starts out, in order to avoid startling omissions in his commissary or bad breaks in his itinerary.

Need Better Roads.

One thing about the big flow of auto travel to the national parks this year will be the probable effect it will have on the improvement of roads within the park boundaries. A lot of auto owners returning from trips to the national playgrounds last year made the statement that the routes leading to the gates of the parks were in splendid shape, but that the roads inside the big reserves were not all that could be wished for by even the most sanguine motorist.

Few people realize, say most of the park superintendents, just what the beauties of America's great reserves are. The auto club has some splendid maps available for the use of people who are going to take their spring trips toward the national parks in California or elsewhere.

Buick Company Turns Out Car No. 1,000,000

FLINT, Mich., March 3.—Buick Motor Car Company has accomplished something that no other motor car manufacturer with the exception of Ford has achieved—the production of the 1,000,000th motor. Elation at the Buick plant in Flint means that the 1,000,000th completed Buick car is only a matter of a few weeks. The motor, just produced, and 1,000,000th Buick car, soon to make its advent, arrived in the 20th anniversary of the Buick, the company having been organized in 1903, in which year its production was sixteen automobiles.

DEALER OBLIGED TO AID CLIENTS

Sale of Automobile Calls for Steady Service, Says L. P. Clark

"The increasing value and refinement of cars is making more and more vivid the importance of local dealer responsibility.

"Compared to cars and prices five years ago, a man today is getting an amazing value for a nominal sum. But the vast number of new owners has brought into existence a real service problem. The car owner finds that what he bought is a car, but what he wants is transportation. And the price of the car is only part of the cost of the mileage of it.

"The good dealer is the one who has provided the things the owner needs, as well as the cars for the new buyers. The modern dealer sells much more than the car.

"People are learning that the real automobile dealer recognizes his obligation to provide whatever may be needed from time to time to enable the car to deliver what the maker built into it.

"Most dealers in the various things people buy, exist only to sell the article. But the automobile dealer today is coming to be also a source of supply for the man who has already bought a car.

"After a man buys a car, he begins to buy mileage. And he expects his dealer to have an ample stock at all times of the things which constitute 'low operating cost,' says Lyman P. Clark, of the Glendale Motor Car Company, 124 West Colorado street, Maxwell and Chalmers dealers.

wide stretches of Californian prairie. You don't have to see the herds to know which are the former and which the latter. The cattle rub the poles breast high, the sheep knee high. We looked in vain for one pole that had not offered solace to some itching flank,—there was not one such.

Motor Behaves Well

Our gas mileage for this part of he trip, strangely enough was better than twenty miles to the gallon, due partly to the slackened speed but mostly to a motor that seemingly will not overheat, even when it has heavy duty to perform.

The sun burned down hotly on this vast valley, and alkali outcropped in quantity along the road but neither here nor elsewhere on the run did we even give thought to our tires, so light is the Nash Four on its feet.

From Paso Robles we came on down past Atascadero over perfect boulevards that continued to San Luis Obispo and beyond, practically all the way back to Glendale, over the last leg of the long triangle.

The superb ribbon of silver road ran swiftly and smoothly under our whirling wheels, despite a wind almost as stiff as that encountered on the ridge. Almost before we knew it, we were on beautiful Gaviota pass, then in Ventura, then home—the staunch Nash Four purring softly outside the E. B. Sutton sales rooms, after that strenuous sprint of 531 miles.

It's Up to the Car

In commenting on this test run made by one of his stock Nash Four touring cars, E. B. Sutton praised the performance warmly. "Such a trip," he said, "brings out the best in a car, or the worst. The reason nothing but good came out of the Nash is because nothing but good went into it. It is a car honestly built, to deliver consistent economical service. This run merely checks up for our own satisfaction what we already know—that for an all around buy, there is no other car in the class.

"Consider the fuel matter for a moment. In spite of a tough wind going and coming, the car averaged practically twenty miles to a gallon. Under ordinary going this mileage would be considerably exceeded. Such trips generally eat up the gas. Then consider the fact that the car required neither additional oil nor water on the entire run. That demonstrates beyond any argument the kind of design, material and workmanship the Nash embodies. This car offers an economy of transportation combined with a sturdiness and all-round satisfaction that should be fully investigated by the prospective buyer of a motor car in this class.

Needs No Repairs

"The car had been driven 885 miles when it left on this run, with absolutely nothing done to it except to adjust the valve tappets, just prior to the trip. When it returned, the speedometer read 1416 miles. We sent the car into the shop to be gone over thoroughly, and after a detailed examination our foreman reported that it needed absolutely nothing done to it. So we washed and polished the car—and called it a day.

"Now I'll say that's going some, when you can pound a light four-cylinder car over 531 miles of varied road and atmospheric conditions, and bring it back without even loosening a bolt."

INVEST BIG SUM IN MACHINE SHOP

Betry & Gray Erect $20,000 Plant for Garage on East Colorado

The opening of the new Betry & Gray garage and machine shop on the corner of East Colorado and Everett street marks an investment, in lots, building and equipment, of close to $20,000, and places this firm among the strongest engaged in the automobile business in Glendale. The two partners, Owen C. Betry and Elmer M. Gray, built their new home on lots that they had bought, and they have installed in it the most modern machinery to carry on their business of automobile repairing and machine work of every class. They have installed a gasoline filling station, an oil pump, and they will also conduct a service department for the cars that are brought to them by their clients. They will also carry a stock of tires and the latest automobile accessories.

The senior partner, Mr. Betry, worked in some of the leading machine and automobile shops in Los Angeles before coming here six months ago, and Mr. Gray has also had years of experience in this line of work. Their choice of Glendale they say was an inevitable one after they had visited this city and had examined the possibilities here at length, as they realized that Glendale offers an excellent opening for an establishment such as they have started and in which they have invested so heavily.

eighty additional miles were planted under permits granted prior to the time of close co-operation between the state highway commission and the state forester's office.

200 Miles Planted

"This makes a total of 200 miles of road, or approximately 400 miles of trees, that have been planted along the state highways within the past two years.

"The original planting, as well as replacements, is done by the individual, club or society making the request, after which the trees immediately pass into the hands of the highway commission, which assumes the responsibility for their maintenance and care.

"In keeping with this program it became apparent, about the first of the year, that it would be necessary to centralize the care of these plantings under a special department and the problem was placed before the state forester by the commission. The plan agreed upon as the most feasible was to place this work in the hands of some member of the forester's staff, who would be required to work from that office, and assume duties in an advisory capacity to the several highway division engineers.

Planting Inspected

"The writer was selected to carry out this work and on May 15, 1922, he resigned from the federal service and began inspecting the different highways. As rapidly as possible memoranda as to their condition and requirements was forwarded to the division engineer in charge. Up and until the present date this work has been carried on without interruption and as a result nearly all the plantings on the highways of the state have been checked up, reported in and where found to require attention, steps taken to remedy existing troubles.

"It was found, as in all new undertakings assuming large proportions suddenly, that the care of these plantings should have come under systematized control at an earlier date than they did, and that a realization of their requirements, both as to planting and care, was lacking.

Need Expert Attention

"It was not an unwillingness to attend these trees that was responsible for their condition, but more of a lack of knowledge just what should be done for their preservation, that caused the decadence and finally the death of a certain per cent of them.

"As a result of the season's work from 10,000 to 15,000 trees were saved and started on the way to permanent establishment that would have perished in the event of attention being withheld."

OVERLAND PLANT FOR CALIFORNIA

John N. Willys Tells Plans to Start Factory for Coast Business

Plans for the establishment of a Willys-Knight factory in this state, presumably to be located in the south, were revealed by John N. Willys, president of the Willys-Knight Corporation at the banquet given Thursday in the Ambassador hotel in Los Angeles to the firm's dealers in the southern section of the state, and at which Geo. T. Smith, 228 S. Brand, local distributor, and Harry Kennedy, sales manager, were guests. Personal representatives of Mr. Willys are now looking over the ground with a view to selecting sites for the new factory. Mr. Willys is now making a tour of the west and is conferring with all of his dealers in this territory.

In his speech at the banquet Mr. Willys pointed out, as showing the increased efficiency of the factory, that 18,000 employes were on the payroll in 1916, where there are now 9500, but t he 1922 production was three times that of 1916, due to the introduction of improved methods of manufacture.

He also stated that official figures published by the Motor Registration News showed that the Willys-Overland Co. had shown a sales increase of 219 per cent over 1921, a record that stands out pre-eminently in the industry. By May of this year, he declared, the output of the plant will reach 300 cars a day, a figure which is even now almost within sight of the factory.

Southern Pacific to Build Branch Line

SAN FRANCISCO, March 3.—The Southern Pacific company has applied to the interstate commerce commission for permission to construct a branch line of railroad between Magunden and Arvin, in Kern county, according to an application received by the railroad commission.

The proposed new line, nineteen miles in length, is to commence at Magunden, a point on the Southern Pacific main line, about four miles east of Bakersfield, run south seven miles, thence east five miles, thence south again four miles, and will serve what is locally known as the Weed Patch-Arvin district.

House Votes Measure To Aid Coal Board

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The administration bill enlarging the powers of the United States coal commission and requiring answers by coal operators and miners to the commission's questionnaires passed the house by a vote of 209 to 76. This legislation makes possible an appropriation of $400,000 in addition to the $200,000 already given to the commission for its fact-finding investigation.

Taking of a census by the methods adopted in Western nations, has never been attempted in China.

CROSSING THE DESERT, OLD STYLE ABOVE; NEW BELOW

The caterpillar wheels on which the Citroen cars achieved their remarkable journey across the sands of the famed Sahara are shown in the lower picture. The advantage of this style of caterpillar is its flexibility. It will accommodate itself easily to extreme irregularities of surface. It will climb over rocks, through sand, and, besides, has considerable speed, averaging 100 miles a day. In the picture (A) and (F) indicate the two pulleys which take the place of the driving wheel. They are placed in front and behind the back axle (B), and their own axles are not fixed to the chassis, but rise and fall with the irregularities of the ground. The front pair of pulleys (F) merely rest on the ground by their own weight, being secured to the main axle by the arm (H). (B) is the special axle which supports (C) weight of the car and is rigidly fixed to the chassis. Attached to this axle by means of a bridge of springs are the four small roller wheels (E), which are held in pairs to the springs (C) by the swing bars (D).

CHEVROLET CARS AT MILLION MARK

Enlarged Factory Facilities Enable Firm to Join Biggest Producers

A telegram received by C. L. Smith, Chevrolet agent, at the corner of Colorado and Orange streets announced that on February 22nd, the Chevrolet organization had turned out its millionth automobile, reaching a position up among the leaders in the automobile industry of the country in the production of cars.

The increased facilities that have been secured within the past year by the Chevrolet Company have been one of the most important factors in permitting it to reach the million car class, and the strenuous efforts of its nation-wide selling organization has insured the absorption of the immense output on a steady basis that provides a year-round market for the Chevrolet cars.

Another important influence in creating the unprecedented demand for the Chevrolet, according to Mr. Smith, is the great number of improvements that have been added to the car during the past two years. These refinements, the work of the leading automobile engineers in the country, have placed the Chevrolet in a class that bears distinction in every line and that embodies in the car a value far out of proportion to the price charged for it. Increased efficiency in the Chevrolet plant, Mr. Smith declares, will bring a number of revolutionary changes during the coming year, as the organization keeps pace with changes in motor construction.

Murphy Sustains Four Fractures In One Arm

George L. Murphy, of the Murphy-Doner Service Station, 312 South Brand, is nursing a broken right arm that he sustained on Monday when a sedan that was being repaired slid forward off the blocks on which it was elevated and dropped on him as he was working below it. The arm and wrist were broken in four places, but an examination of the fractures by his physician showed that they are all clean breaks, and that no serious effects are to be feared as a result of the accident.

Revolution Results In Living Conditions Through Automobile

THE automobile has revolutionized the living conditions of practically every citizen in this country. Scores of other industries receive benefits from motor vehicle manufacture. This year should see even greater progress in the production and use of individual transportation units, stated Alfred Reeves, general manager National Automobile Chamber of Commerce in his address before the Transportation Club dinner, at Detroit.

CALIFORNIA HAS HIGH CAR RATIO

One Car for Every 4.1 In State, Figures Quoted By Agent Show

The number of automobiles in the United States today is in the proportion of one to every 8.6 people, according to figures quoted from official sources by C. R. D'Arge, sales manager of Jesse E. Smith, local Ford agents, and of these California has the greatest number of cars per capita with one for every 4.1 inhabitants, or a car for virtually every family. When the same proportion is attained throughout the country there will be over 25,000,000 motor vehicles in service in the United States. New York, the numerical leader among the states, has one car for every 10.3 people, while Alabama brings up the tail end of the procession with one for every 26-1 persons.

The universal need for rapid transportation has been one of the vital elements in the development of every section of the country, and the Ford car has contributed materially to this advance through its ability to free individual transportation from all laborious limitations, to say nothing of the recreational value of the automobile, which has long since diminished before its greater necessity as a utility.

The building of low priced automobiles has done more to bring about the building of a nation-wide system of highways, Mr. D'Arge declares, that any other agency in the country today.

HINTS FOR THE MOTORIST by ALBERT L. CLOUGH

SERVICE SUGGESTIONS

Servicing Motor Cars Is Now a Highly Specialized Business

If the company that built your car suggests, in their instruction book or elsewhere, that you register with them your name, address, and car number, it is a good idea to comply, especially if your car is of a new model. In case they maintain an inspection service, it is also well to investigate it, for you may find it profitable to make use of it. The guarantee borne by cars occasionally proves of value to an owner and it should be read over and thoroughly understood. Full information concerning your car and its operation and repair should be obtained, without charge, from the factory or any of its authorized service stations. In writing the factory for information or repair parts, always give your car's serial number, engine number and year of manufacture. It usually pays to order parts from a service station rather than from the factory direct and on the whole, it will be found more satisfactory to have repairs made at a service station of its particular make than at a general repair shop, especially if the required work is on parts which are at all out of the ordinary. Remember that nearly all the electrical equipment, the carburetor, vacuum tank, the speedometer, tires, rims and some other parts were not manufactured by the car maker, but by concerns which take their own responsibility for their product. Most of them maintain service stations and information, inspection and repairs on these parts are usually more satisfactorily obtained from them than from the car's service station. Some battery manufacturers ask customers to register their batteries with the company's nearest service station and render a limited free service in the way of inspection, which is of considerable value. As to the electrical equipment, it is too much to expect that a general repair shop can handle difficulties which arise with it so well as can a specialized electrical service station, and the same thing is true as to carburetors, vacuum tanks and other parts of the equipment.

Underoiled Cylinders

M. A. H. Writes: "When I had my car looked over last time, they found that the piston rings were so badly worn that new ones had to be fitted, although they had not seen more than 6000 miles of service. They tell me too that the cylinders are worn quite a little.

Can this be because there isn't enough oil on the cylinder walls? Is there any way of finding out about this?

Answer: Insufficient cylinder lubrication could readily account for this rapid wear. You can remove the cylinder head just after you have run the car, and pass your finger over the cylinder walls to see if there is an unbroken film of oil over their entire surface. If not it would look as if they were underoiled. On some engines, the finger can be inserted through the spark plug hole and run over a little of the wall surface. If you wish to furnish a little more cylinder lubrication, you can mix oil with your gasoline in the proportion of one part to 20 or 30. Increasing the oil pressure, in a force feed oiling system, should give more cylinder lubrication. We suppose you renew your engine oil frequently.

As To Oil Pumping

C. S. B. writes: Please answer the following questions concerning oil pumping in respect to which my engine has given considerable trouble: (1) Will an extra hot spark stop missing from this cause? (2) Can stuck rings be loosened up without taking an engine down? (3) Will the use of motor graphite reduce it? (4) Will spark intensifiers prevent the missing of oily plugs? (5) What other remedies can you sugfest?

Answer: (1) No. Certainly not in extreme cases. (2) Soaking them thoroughly with kerosene, introduced through the spark-plug holes, sometimes frees them by removing the burnt oil, with which they are gummed. (3) It will have no appreciable effect, if the ring-fit is really bad, although it may, in time, improve the tightness of rings that are nearly a perfect fit. (4) They will cause plugs to spark which would be completely short-circuited without them. (5) If well fitted rings will not stop oil pumping, reduction of the oil supply to the cylinder walls may do so. Special oil proof rings are bevelled, scraper rings, with oil-return holes drilled through the piston walls in the ring grooves sometimes prove effective.

Goes Over All Kinds of Roads and Into Snow to Prove Its Stamina and Merit

A Stock Nash Touring Car from the Glendale Nash Sales Rooms, at 112 S. Maryland, rolled back into Glendale the other day, after a grueling test run that smashed records all along the line—and demonstrated clearly the remarkable economy and endurance of this sturdy car.

Over snow packed mountains, across hot wastes of desert, over deep rutted dirt roads a hundred miles at a stretch—this wonder car roared its steady way to a total of 531 miles.

Wonderful Record of Economy

In spite of the difficult, almost impassable roads—this Nash Four averaged twenty miles to the gallon; and used no additional Oil or Water.

Motor Behaved Perfectly

The car had been driven 885 miles when it started on this run, and without mechanical attention started on this grueling test. When it returned the speedometer registered 1416 miles, and detailed examination in the shop showed the car to be in perfect condition—not even a bolt loose.

Come In and See the New Nash Four

See for yourself what an attractive car it is. You'll notice that it embodies a number of important improvements in both performance and construction. New Nash engineering developments have given it a smoothness, a quietness, and a flexibility that rank its action with that of a high-priced car with more than four cylinders.

The WORLD OVER
By FRANKLIN B. MORSE
PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

SAN FRANCISCO, March 3.—All the indications at the present time seem favorable for a reappearance of the University of Washington eight-oared crew's participation again next spring in the Poughkeepsie regatta. It will be remembered that last year the Washingtonians finished second to the winning Navy crew after one of the most thrilling races ever rowed on this historic course.

No secret is made of the fact that the Seattle institution's ambition is to win this blue ribbon event, and all the circumstances now are favorable toward the achievement of this hope. Of last year's varsity crew only two men will be missing from this year's boat, and with a sudden wealth of material, it does not seem at all unlikely that the two men selected to fill the empty seats will be as good, if not better, than the men who performed last year.

Another thing, the Navy, considered the most dangerous of all the boats, will not be in this year's race providing this institution holds to a decision that it made some months ago not to enter the competition. With this crew eliminated, and with her veteran tried crew, Washingtonians feel that the psychological time is at hand to make the quest.

The six men remaining to coach Russell Callow are Tidmarsh, bow; Parkins, No. 2; Cushman, No. 3; France, No. 4; Spuhn, No. 5; and Shaw (captain), No. 6. Dutton is the most likely candidate for the open No. 7 seat at the present time while Walling is making a splendid showing for the 1923 stroke position.

The definite date set for the dual race between Washington and the University of California, is April 21, as just announced. This will be rowed, as usual, on the Oakland, California, Estuary There are few followers of rowing but believe that Washington will be the winner. Coach Ben Wallis of the University of California crew has only one veteran of last year now sitting in his first varsity boat, and it seems more than any man, unless a performer of miracles, can do to make up a winning combination under the circumstances.

Wallis has five boats on the water carrying his varsity material of which G. A. Williams (captain) and No. 7 in last year's boat is the only veteran. John Rogers, who stroked the second varsity last season is being tried out in the first boat. Gordon Cranmer, being tried at No. 6, is the only member of last year's freshman boat who has qualified thus far for varsity honors, the majority of Wallis' candidates being men who rowed on the second varsity.

Some of the best of the first exhibition baseball games for the 1923 season will be played soon on the Pacific coast. According to the present arrangements between the Chicago Nationals on the one hand, and the Vernon and Los Angeles clubs of the Pacific coast league, the Cubs will play the Vernon club on March 10, 11, 23 and 24, and the Los Angeles team on March 16, 17, 18 and 25. In addition a second team of the Cubs is slated to play the Salt Lake team at Fresno, Cal., March 24 and 25.

Thus far this season, the report of minor injuries and bruises among the baseball players at the preliminary training camps has been much in excess of last year. Last spring the managers were particularly fortunate in getting by without any severe cases of charley horse and other muscular infirmities which beset athletes trying to get into condition. There have been half a dozen players reported on the crippled list this year already. In one case a player had an arm temporarily paralyzed by being hit by a foul ball. An odd case was that of a player getting lamed in both legs through playing over a soggy golf course. When men are soft after their winter layoff, it is remarkable how little it takes to cripple them until they get their muscles hardened and in proper working order.

The first of the trapshooting tournaments of the season on the Pacific coast will be the annual California-Nevada event slated for March 8, 9, and 10. It will be held under the auspices of the Olympic club of San Francisco at their country annex traps at Lakeside. These traps are among the best in the west and were designed and built by O. N. Ford, the well known shooter while he was in charge of that department a few years ago for the club.

Probably no youngster who is playing tennis at the present time is being more closely watched than Donald Strachan, the 14-year-old holder of the boys' national clay court championship. Champion William Tilden has taken an interest in the lad and is coaching him along. As a protege of Tilden, he naturally gets serious consideration from the tennis followers. Tilden is a pretty keen critic of young players' abilities and it would not be surprising in a few years to see young Strachan's name up near the top of the list.

At this time it is interesting to note that the Davis International tennis challenge cup has been won by America, 6 times.

Australia, 6 times
British Isles, 5 times.

There was no competition during four years of the World War, and no challengers in 1910, at which time the cup was held by Australia, who won it the year before.

THIS BIRD HAS FOUGHT 18 BATTLES AND WON THEM ALL WOOD COWAN

It's a far cry from 1883 to 1923—from one fighting McAuliffe to another. But the west has a new heavyweight by that name, and if he proves as good as some of his boosters claim, the name McAuliffe may grace the records as the nom-de-guerre of a pugilistic champion for the second time.

Jack McAuliffe, the first, was one of the few ring champions who retired undefeated. Jack began his pugilistic career along about 1883 and his record is unmarred by a single defeat. He defended his lightweight title against such thumpers as Kid Lavigne, Young Griffo, Jim Carroll and Billy Myer; the latter fought McAuliffe a 64-round draw in 1889. Jack's 74-round battle with Jim Carney at Revere Beach, Mass., two years previous, is still one of the seven wonder battles of pugilism.

Jack McAuliffe, the second, is a Detroit heavyweight who has been a consistent winner from the start. When he beat the tough Hugh Walker last month he proved himself to be a real contender among the new giants who are working forward to a chance at Dempsey.

This big fellow is a fast stepping, hard-hitting thumper with a good wallop in either hand. He is 22 years old and never even saw a fight until three years ago. Mark Shaughnessy, who had a lot to do with the development of Ketchell and Jack Johnson and many other fighters, picked McAuliffe up off the street, showed him how to hit, put the gloves on with him and soaked Jack with everything he had—and when McAuliffe took it, came back for more and then knocked his instructor out. Shaughnessy was satisfied with his nerve and his ability.

McAuliffe holds a decision over Floyd Johnson, the young Iowa boy who defeated Bill Brennan in a 15-round battle at Madison Square Garden recently. Jack has also beaten Bob Martin, Maxsted, Herman, McCann and many others. He has had something like 18 fights and won them all, and most of these were K. O.'s.

When he licked Walker to a frazzle he gave that old battle-scarred vet a worse beating than Tom Gibbons, Brennan, Dillon, McGoorty, Roper or Gunboat Smith ever handed him. Of course, Walker is growing older day by day since he fought many of the men just mentioned; nevertheless you have to hand it to McAuliffe.

It begins to look as if Dempsey will have plenty to do in the future if he lives long enough, with all these promising youngsters coming up.

SIKI LEAVES TO FIGHT IRISHMAN

Senegalese Boxer to Start Training for Battle on March 17th

CHERBOURG, March 3.—Battling Siki, who is to fight Mike McTigue, middleweight champion of Canada, in Dublin on St. Patrick's day, arrived here from Paris last night on his way to Ireland to get in condition for the bout.

Siki says he is determined to leave here Sunday on board the American steamer President Adams for Queenstown.

Keeps Boat Secret

PARIS, March 3.—Battling Siki, the Senegalese heavyweight, left yesterday for Cherbourg on his way to Dublin, where he is to meet Mike McTigue on March 17.

As the boat touches at Southampton before proceeding to Queenstown, Siki's manager is desirous of keeping the name of the vessel secret, to prevent the British authorities from removing Siki at the former port and compelling his return to France.

Early last November, when Siki was matched with Joe Beckett, the British home office refused to permit the contest in England on the ground that in bouts "between men of color and white men, the temperaments of the contestants are not comparable, and, moreover, all sorts of passions are aroused."

The Sport Crucible
By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, March 3.—For esprit de corps and a common desire for collective rather than individual success, the Chicago White Sox form the finest baseball organization Eddie Collins has known since the old Athletics of happy memory. According to Edward, they would rather win a ball game for Kid Gleason than outhit Cobb and Sisler over a full season.

"The Sox seem to have absorbed the spirit of Gleason, and they hustle to help each other in a way that is amazing," Collins informed the writer recently. "I have never seen anything like it since the old days with Connie Mack in Philadelphia. The pennant-winning Sox of 1917 and 1919 didn't have it. They just crashed their way to the flag."

Contrary to general gossip, Collins is by no means the heart-broken individual he was pictured to be when the proposed deal that was to send him to the Yankees failed to materialize. In fact, it is not a matter of evidence that he was even mildly disappointed.

"Conditions in Chicago are ideal for me," he said, in discussing this report. "I would have been genuinely sorry to leave the club, for I have received the utmost consideration from Comiskey and Gleason, and associations I have formed among the players would be hard to break. Of course, my home is in the east, and a berth in New York would have given me more time with my family.

"It is an odd thing," he continued, going off on a philosophical tangent—"home means a great deal to ball players; it does to all traveling men. If it weren't for the money and the fun of playing ball a great many of us would quit the game. For myself, I think the pleasure I get on the ball field makes up for all other inconveniences. I don't believe even the money would attract me after the game began to pall on me. If it ever does I will retire overnight."

Collins is enthusiastic over the chances of the club to run one, two, three in the impending American league race. He seems to feel that the pennant-winning possibilities are there and characterizes Kid Gleason as one of the greatest managers the sport has known.

"We have a fine combination of veteran judgment and youthful speed," he said. "Great things are expected of Kamm, who should give us a real infield for the first time in several seasons. I am not inclined to run wild about a kid infielder I have never seen, but when all reports agree that he is a real ball player there is nothing to do but accept them.

"We have three wonderful young pitchers in Leverette, Blankenship and Robertson. Leverette is one of the best first-year pitchers I have seen in baseball. Blankenship has as much stuff, but it may be several years before he learns the art of pitching as Leverette knows it.

"Falk and Mostil are wonderful young outfielders, and I wouldn't be surprised if both are rated among the best in the business at the end of the 1923 season."

At this point we essayed to interpolate a remark to the effect that Mostil would replace Harry Hooper in a season or two.

"Not Hooper," was the instant reply. "That old boy is a wonder. He is just as good as he was in the old days, with Speaker and Duffy Lewis in Boston, and I expect to see him playing bang-up ball two or three years from now. The Hooper trade was the worst Frazee ever made."

OFFERS POUR IN FOR TITLE BOUT

Frankie Genaro, New King Of Flyweights, Will Meet English Champ

NEW YORK, March 3.—Offers to meet Jimmy Wilde of England, world's champion flyweight boxer, were under consideration today by Frankie Genaro of New York, who won the American title last night from Pancho Villa of the Philippine Islands, at Madison Square Garden.

After receiving an offer from an unnamed English promoter to meet Wilde for the world's title in a London ring, Genaro received overtures from two American impresarios. Tex Rickard, who staged Thursday night's match, suggested holding a Wilde-Genaro bout at the new Yankee stadium, and Tom O'Rourke of the Republican Athletic Club, proffered the Polo Grounds.

Genaro said he did not care to go to Europe at this time and that he will be as active in this country, now that he has the American title, as when he was seeking it.

Jockey Anderson Is Killed in Horse Race

TIA JUANA, Mex., March 3.—Martin Anderson, 29, a jockey, was killed yesterday afternoon when Norfield, a horse he was riding in the seventy race, stumbled at the head of the stretch.

There were eight horses in the race and as the field swung into the stretch, Dark Agnes, second choice in the betting, stepped on the heels of the horse in front of her and fell. Norfield and Marse John who were following Dark Agnes closely, were unable to avoid the fallen mare and stumbled over her. Jockey Pool, of Marse John, and Jockey Martin on Dark Agnes escaped injury, but Anderson had his neck broken by the fall.

ONE MONARCH IN EUROPE NOT SHY

King of Swaziland Frank About Likes and Dislikes; Welcomes Reporter

LONDON, March 3.—Though the "king business" is in the midst of a great slump a king is a king, and it's not often even in these days than an ordinary reporter is granted an interview by a king.

There is one king, however, who has a proper perspective of the power of the press and its representatives and is always ready to greet reporters on an equal basis. It's the King of Swaziland.

Sobhuza II, King of Swaziland, has no undue pretensions as to his own importance and has a fair conception of the courtesy due reporters and receives them. Furthermore, upsetting all of the usual kingly traditions, he gives interviews.

The King of Swaziland visited recently in London, and it was with no great difficulty that he was interviewed, despite the fact that he was more or less busy with conferences with the Duke of Devonshire, Colonial Secretary, whom he came to London to see in order to attempt to induce the British government to put the ruler of Swaziland on its payroll. The British government is already paying the salaries of several potentates, and the King of Swaziland sees no reason why his paycheck shouldn't come from Whitehall.

Has "Oxford Air"

A youngster, as kings go, is Sobhuza II, but he has an air about him—a strictly Oxford air. He wears his hat at a rakish angle, and his white teeth glimmer in sharp contrast to his dusky complexion, as he smiles constantly.

Right at the beginning of the interview the king began an attempt to dodge the regal honors. He announced that he would rather be called "prince" than "king," and, in fact, he liked the title "paramount chief" best of all.

Sobhuza didn't care to discuss world politics, but he was full of talk about his likes and dislikes.

"I love music and the opera, and plays, and the noble cathedrals and hope to see all of them here," he remarked. "In Swaziland we have no opera, no theater—not even a motion picture house."

This didn't sound terribly exciting, and it looked as though the interview was going to be a "dud."

"Ah, but I have a car!" said the king, his face alight. Now all Americans are interested in cars. "Let's go," mumbled the reporter.

Has American Auto

"Yes," chimed in Mr. Seme of the king's suite, "and it's a beauty!" Maybe Mr. Seme is on the American automobile company's payroll, maybe not; at any rate he took up the interview.

"You should see the chief when he rides in his car at night on shooting expeditions. The headlight is dazzling."

Here the king intervened and took command of the interview again.

"Ah! a few months ago Seme and I drove out to the bush, and, hearing that lions were close to our rendezvous, I ordered three fires to be lit in a triangle, and we slept in the center of them.

"And after we had shot gemsbock and koodoos — Swaziland buck—the next morning we discovered that we had actually been sleeping in a lion's lair.

"Sport! How I love sport! Seme here thinks he's a good shot, but I beat him easily."

The king then discussed the sporting proclivities of King George and the Prince of Wales and then turned his discussion to Vandyck portraits of the royal family, and the interview petered out, but it was an interview with a king.

Oh, yes! The king asked that the story that he eats three rabbits and four chickens at every meal be denied. He says he is not that kind of a king.

CITY RAILWAYS BOB UP IN RACE FOR DETROIT MAYOR; ADVANCE HENRY FORD'S PLAN

May Become Main Issue In Election to Name Successor to James Couzens, Big Job for Big Man to Fill, Is Predicted

By W. R. STOKLEY
For International News Service

DETROIT, March 3.—Detroit's street railway system, for many years a political football, has been kicked back on the mayoralty gridiron again and promises to be the outstanding issue when Detroiters go to the polls to pick a man to succeed James Couzens, who resigned recently as mayor to take Truman H. Newberry's seat in the United States senate.

John Lodge, president of the city council, has taken over Mayor Couzens' job temporarily. Under the city charter Lodge must call a special election within six months.

Detroit has in operation the largest municipally owned street car system in the world. Couzens formulated the plan to purchase the old Detroit United Railway lines and finally "sold" the idea to the people, after one of the bitterest fights in the history of Detroit. The Detroit United Railway company was willing to sell—but at its own price. Couzens refused to buy at the D. U. R. figure and appealed to the people.

A substantial majority was rolled up for an amendment empowering the mayor to oust the D. U. R., and Couzens issued an ultimatum. A compromise was reached, and the lines passed into the hands of the city.

Couzens has left a big job for a big man. The municipally owned system is still a youngster and must be nursed along to have a fair chance to "live." The street-car system has made money under city operation, but the experiment has barely been started, and the principle has many enemies.

With Couzens out of the way, friends of private ownership see a chance to stage a successful "come back." Under the city charter the mayor names the general manager of the municipally owned lines and is responsible for practically everything that happens in the city government. It is doubtful whether the lines could be operated profitably under city control should enemies of municipal ownership elect a mayor.

Among those mentioned as likely candidates are: Frank Doremus, former United States congressman; W. Marx, ex-mayor, and Judge Edward J. Jeffries.

Henry Ford created quite a stir when he suggested cutting street car fares one-half. Detroiters now pay a straight five-cent fare. Prospective candidates will probably be asked during the campaign if they think this is possible. They may also be asked how it can be done and who they are going to place in control of the lines.

A few months ago the automobile manufacturer reduced the price of his cars below the cost of production. Increased sales resulted, and he has made more money than ever before. The same principle can be applied to a municipally owned streetcar line, Ford believes.

"I am in favor of cutting the fares one-half, building extensions and improving the service, even if taxpayers have to help out a little on it at the start," says Ford.

"That would treble the business. People would find they could ride the cars so cheaply that tens of thousands who drive to and from work would ride the cars—the saving would be so considerable they would have so. And that one step alone would go very largely toward solving the congestion in down-town streets.

"Detroit ought not to elect a professional politician mayor. Let's get rid of the politicians. Detroit needs a man capable of making municipal ownership a success. The politicians can't do it.

"We are installing a lot of additional power at River Rouge, which we will be glad to sell to the municipal lines—and very cheap," says Ford in pleading aid to the project.

Ford has been keeping in close touch with the municipally owned lines. William B. Mayo, his chief engineer, is also a member of the Street Railway Commission. Couzens carried many a knotty problem to Mayo.

How far will Ford go to "get rid of the politicians?" Will there be an out-and-out Ford candidate, pledged to inaugurate Ford's scheme to cut the fares in half and treble the business? Could such a candidate be elected?

The politicians are worried.

UNCLE WIGGILY AND HIS SKEES

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily! Come and see what Sammie Littletail has on his feet!" called Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy one morning when the bunny rabbit gentleman had finished eating his breakfast in the hollow stump bungalow.

"I should think he'd have on his rubber boots, for the snow is still very deep," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Not only has he on his rubber boots, but he has something else like long sticks," went on the muskrat lady housekeeper, "and he's sliding along over the snow."

Uncle Wiggily stood at the side of Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy at the window and looked out toward where Sammie Littletail, the rabbit boy, was walking along over the snow.

"Why, Sammie has made himself a pair of skees," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Skees! Is that what you call them," asked Nurse Jane. "They look to me like barrel staves."

"Well, they are barrel staves, if you want to call them that," admitted Uncle Wiggily. "That's the shape of real skees, too. They are like snow shoes, only longer and more narrow. You fasten them on your foot by a leather strap and shuffle along. You can slide over the snow like a sled.

"Sammie, I suppose, didn't have any money to buy real skees, so he made himself some out of two barrel staves. A smart rabbit is Sammie—see him go!"

"Yes, see him go!" laughed Nurse Jane, for just then Sammie's legs and feet and skees became all tangled together and down he fell.

"Oh, that isn't anything," said Uncle Wiggily. "That often happens when one wears skees. He's up again!" And, surely enough, up jumped Sammie and away he shuffled. He reached the top of a little hill, and then, giving himself a shove, down he coasted on his barrel stave skees just like in the moving pictures.

Soon after that Nurse Jane heard Uncle Wiggily hammering and pounding down cellar.

"What are you making?" asked the muskrat lady.

"Oh—er—nothing—just nothing," answered Uncle Wiggily, and, though she could not see it, Nurse Jane was sure his pink nose was twinkling.

"Nothing, indeed!" she thought. "I'm sure he's making himself a pair of barrel stave skees!"

And that's just what the bunny rabbit gentleman was doing. He found an old barrel, knocked it apart and fastened to two of the staves some straps into which he could slip his hind paws.

"You'll bump your pink nose if you try to walk on those" warned Nurse Jane.

"Oh, I guess not" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "I used to go skeeing when I was a young rabbit. I think I haven't forgotten how."

But something seemed to go wrong, for Uncle Wiggily's left skee became tangled in his right skee, and his right skee, somehow or other, was tangled around his neck. Then his left skee came off and he fell down.

"Oh, my goodness" cried Nurse Jane, who was watching him at the window.

"Oh, I'm not hurt in the least. I can get up and keep on skeeing," cried the bunny. But, as he arose and again fastened on the barrel staves to start off once more, Nurse Jane gasped and cried:

"Here comes the Fuzzzy Fox" and surely enough, the bad animal was rushing out of the woods, toward the rabbit.

"Now, I'll nibble your ears while you're tangled in the skees" barked the Fox.

He fell down.

"Oh, dear, Uncle Wiggily never can run away with those barrel staves on his paws" cried Nurse Jane.

But, just as the Fox was going to nibble the bunny there was a whoop, a rush and down the hill, coasting on his skees, came Sammie, the bunny boy.

"Let Uncle Wiggily alone!" shouted Sammie, and he jumped on the fox with both his skees and so crumpled up the bad chap that the Fox howled "Ouchie Wouchie!" and away he ran.

Then Sammie helped Uncle Wiggily to stand up and soon the rabbit gentleman could skee along very well indeed.

"Well," said Nurse Jane when he came in to dinner, "you had an adventure with your skees, anyhow."

"I certainly did!" laughed the bunny!" And if the milk bottle doesn't hide in the letterman's bag when the sugar spoon wants it to go to the moving pictures, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's bob sled.

RADIO RECEPTION

To avoid the difficulties attendant upon the presence of the detector in a separate circuit. It is well to digress at this point in the consideration of radio receivers and refer the reader who may have followed these series to the previous articles, published some months ago on the subject of pioneer transmitters, as it is helpful to remember that the development of the various types of receivers was coincident with that of transmitters, therefore, frequent comparison of the forms of receivers about to be discussed with the transmitters of the same characteristics will be interesting, as it will show the development of one plainly suggested possibilities for progress in the other. Thus with the first Marconi transmitter, called the plain aerial, developed and patented in 1896, we find a receiver of very similar construction and with the same characteristics.

This receiver was similar to the 1896 transmitter of Marconi in the following particulars; there were no means provided for the antenna circuit, and, due to the inclusion in the antenna circuit of the very high resistance of the detector which in this case was a coherer high damping of the received antenna current resulted, with consequent broad tuning. As with the transmitter, it had the great advantage, however, of being a single circuit receiver, in other words, there was only one oscillating circuit. This circuit was shown in the immediately preceding articles.

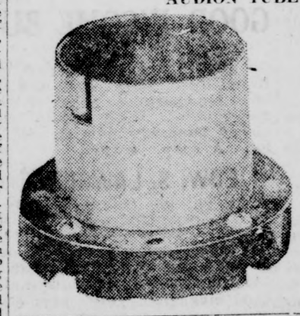
APPARATUS AND DEVICES

By RALPH BROWN, RADIO ENGINEER

AUDION TUBE RECEPTACLE



A neat type of audion tube socket designed for mounting on the front of a panel or on a table top. It differs from our Type UR-100 mainly in that it is front as well as back connected. Instead of merely having connecting screws on the contact springs in the rear of the unit panel, screw connections are brought out through the bakelite base on front where they are readily accessible. It is designed to take the standard 4-prong base of the transmitting or receiving tubes on the market today.

Veterans to Receive Help in Buying Homes

Robert F. Smith, secretary of the state veterans' welfare board, today made public the names of forty-two wounded veterans who have just been granted state aid in the purchase of homes, and included in the list were the names of Clarence E. Hall, Bernard J. Holland, Wilmot J. McIntyre and Edwin J. Sadler of Glendale, and H. D. Hendricks of Eagle Rock.

The board will extend aid to approximately 100 more disabled veterans during the next three months, Smith said.

Only about 2 per cent of automobile accidents are due to defective mechanism.

Y. M. C. A. TO HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET

Long Beach Pastor to Give Address on 'Boyville' Following Dinner

The first annual banquet of the Glendale district Y. M. C. A. will be held at 6:30 o'clock next Thursday night, March 8, at the Methodist church, corner of Kenwood and Wilson.

There will be an important business session, at which reports of the year's work will be made by Secretary Rex C. Kelley and Treasurer C. D. Lusby. A board of directors will, for the first time, be elected, the present board having been working under appointment by the state committee.

Dr. I. Frank Roach, recently of Oklahoma City, now pastor of the Methodist church of Long Beach, will deliver his popular talk on "Boyville."

The Foundation Of Character

YOU may not be a church member and yet have high standards of living and a true conception of right and wrong. Who laid this foundation of your character? Was it not your parents, grandparents or friends who believed in the constructive force of the church and who were diligent in church attendance?

Do you know many Christian characters who are not supporters of the church?

Can you deny that the church is a broadening, uplifting and guiding influence and that it is for the best interests of civilization that the church stamps its ideals and standards upon the coming generation?

You acquired your standards of life from church-going people. Where are your children getting their ideals? Are they being grounded in the principles that tend toward true happiness and success? You owe it to those who laid the foundation of your character to pass along this opportunity to appreciate the better things of life to the coming generation.

The church is the great force that holds the family together as a unit today. It should have the support of all who recognize their obligations to posterity.

NEW LOCK HALTS THEFT OF AUTOS

Installed as Integral Part of Ignition System on Automobiles

What is declared to be the best cure for automobile thefts, the Ingersoll Combination Ignition lock, is now being installed on Glendale automobiles by C. W. Cizek, 300 South Brand, under the direction of O. W. Nation, manager for the Ingersoll Combination Auto Lock Corporation, who has opened headquarters here from which he will cover the entire state.

The Ingersoll lock bears a close resemblance to the ordinary safe lock, but it is of the disc type, without tumblers, and is, therefore, said to be pick proof. Tests that have been carried out by the leading lock experts of the country at the Yale & Towne factory in Stamford, Conn., where the lock is manufactured, have shown it to be one that is absolutely thief proof, it is claimed.

The lock operates in connection with the ignition of the car, which, according to experts, is the logical point for an automobile lock. In addition to the lock, proper, the ignition wire is covered with armored cable and the coil is also covered, so that when a thief attempts to steal a car that is equipped with the Ingersoll lock the length of the job discourages him and he gives it up as a bad job.

CHIEF A. H. LANKFORD, G. F. D.

CHURCHES

REV. ROBERT E. LUCEY, D. D., is to be the speaker at the four masses tomorrow at the Holy Family Catholic church, in the interests of the 1923 Catholic charities campaign of the diocese of Los Angeles and San Diego. Rev. Lucey is director-general of the campaign organization.

The campaign objective is $50,000 to be used in the work of the bureau of Catholic charities, which includes four departments, child welfare, family welfare, immigrant welfare and correctional work.

An interesting statement with regard to the work is that it extends into every county in the diocese and that the bureau would help a non-Catholic and does so continually.

Make Plans To Build Mission In Green Verdugo Hills

KENNETH ROAD IS UNDERGOING BIG DEVELOPMENT

Former Pathway of Padres Now Residence District Most Attractive

WILSHIRE boulevard, Los Feliz road, Whitley heights, all rolled into one and a dream added as the final touch—that is Kenneth road, one-time pathway of the Padres en route from Mission San Gabriel to Monterey, now Glendale's residence district superb.

Every city ultimately develops somewhere on its outskirts a section of outstanding beauty and reserve, quiet and serene, beyond, away, "far from the madding crowd." And, with mankind's inherent sense that height gives peace, broadening the vistas not only of the eye but of the soul, the history of cities shows that in the majority of cases human beings have turned to the hills for the establishment of these sections.

Picture then Glendale homebuilders turning at last to the north. Picture Kenneth road, a straight ribbon of perfect highway, running west from the north end of Central avenue to Grand View avenue, just above Eighth street, a distance of about ten blocks, each lot and each foot of each lot a piece of unsurpassed vantageground for the lover of a magnificent view.

Picture to the north "those green Verdugo hills" John Stephen McGroarty speaks of so beautifully, with their many rolling hummocks, over which the light shadows of idly drifting, fleecy clouds hover in ever-changing pattern. One could watch those calm green hills by the hour, so soothing is their spell.

Like Great Jewel

Picture to the south the long mounds of hazy mountains comprising the Hollywood-Griffith park range, basking all day long in the warm sunshine.

And in between, set like a glimmering white jewel—Glendale, the wonder city, stretching away between Glendale avenue to the east and the San Fernando road to the west, bursting its confines on either side, growing, striving, achieving—yet all these things far away, faint, transmuted, like the occasional sounds that rise to the soft air, become whispers, ryhthmical, full of music as the wind itself.

STRUCTURE AS MONUMENT TO EARLY CALIFORNIANS

Idea Comes From John Steven McGroarty And Receives Hearty Indorsement

By KATHERINE VIRGINIA SINKS
Of The Evening News Staff

PHANTOM forms of red-skinned Indians, of brown-robed padres and dashing Spanish caballeros will journey down the broad Camino Real of California history to witness the building and dedication of the twenty-second Franciscan mission, the Mission of San Juan Evangelista, to be erected on a choice location in Tujunga, not far distant from the city of Glendale and within the sheltering peace of the Verdugo hills.

Inspiration for this mission monument to the spirit and courage of Fray Junipero Serra and his Franciscan brothers, arose in the heart and mind of John Steven McGroarty, "Scribe of the Green Verdugo Hills," author of the "Mission Play" and writer of California history and romance, who enthusiastically outlined the project at a recent gathering of townspeople in Bolton Hall in Tujunga.

In the accompanying picture one sees the architect's conception of the Mission of San Juan Evangelista. There are also a picture of Mr. McGroarty, an inset showing the mission's location to Southern California cities, and a small sketch of a group of faithful Indians hewing timber in the nearby mountains for structural work in the mission.

The Mission San Juan Evangelista will be the first built since the historic days, 150 years ago, when Father Serra and his co-workers established the chain of twenty-one missions, reaching from San Diego to San Francisco, each a day's journey on horseback, the one from the other.

They came from Spain and Mexico, those earnest, God-fearing Christians, pioneering into the western land on the shores of the great ocean. They came into California strangers, but their much-traveled and well-directed Camino Real, traversing the state and connecting mission with mission and rancho with rancho, is an indelible record of the service they wrought in God's paradise of sunshine and flowers.

In their day, padres, dons and Indians traveled the King's Highway from San Diego to the Mission of Saint Francis by the northern bay, living mostly in the great out-of-doors and kneeling in solemn reverence before the altars of the Missions to worship the God who had brought them into this wonder land.

To these people a mission meant the end of a day's journey, where they might tarry over night in the peaceful atmosphere of the church. There Indian and Spaniard received like welcome and both partook of the counsel of the padres, who were their friends.

It was at the missions that conferences of Father Serra and his brothers were held, when reports were given from the various missions and plans made and prayers offered for a greater future.

BILLIONS WILL BE SPENT IN BUILDING

Contractors and Sellers of Material Prepare for Lots of Activity

The greatest year of construction activity in American history is in prospect for 1923, according to reports from all branches of the building industry.

Conservative estimates place the probable new building expenditures in all lines for the next twelve months at $5,000,000,000.

Hitherto unprecedented activity during the fall and winter is cited as the outstanding reason for this great program. In almost all sections of the country the 1922 construction boom continued through the fall and early winter, resulting in a substantial demand for materials and labor. This action followed the desire of men engaged in building to profit from past experience.

Demand For Steel

Contractors, quick to grasp an opportunity for all-year work, not only completed many jobs that in previous years would have been carried over, but took on new contracts for prompt delivery.

The early days of 1923, therefore, find a heavy demand for steel, cement and other building material. The contractors and builders are taking no chances of being caught with an overload of contracts without materials to build when the first opportunity appears.

The resultant activity is making itself felt all along the line. Railroads are enjoying in the ordinarily slack season a measurable increase in freight traffic. Manufacturers of building materials are being relieved to a certain extent of carrying the tremendous costs of overstocked warehouses with the usual necessity for suspending plant operations.

The movement of stocks without interruption through the winter has enabled manufacturers to keep going because a steady demand was calling for shipments of their products.

No Seasons Exist

Every encourgement is given to a continuance of the present pace in construction work. The taking of early contracts, purchase, shipment and storage of materials for building projects will release the heavy grip of peak load demand and unbalanced seasonal activity which have held the American construction industry at its mercy for so many years.

The experience of 1922 and the progress shown thus far in the new year, demonstrate amply the fallacy that any "season" for home building exists. It appears that 1923 will offer definite assurance of these facts which builders have attempted to impress upon the public for years.

If the transportation system can be kept at even keel and the demands of traffic spread over a twelve months' period instead of approximately seven, while stocks are kept moving from the manufacturer to the job, America's annual building bill can be materially reduced in proportion to the amount of work done. Semi-annual congestion on railroads, affecting building materials, foodstuffs, coal and a great many other basic activities also will be cleared up.

BETTER TYPE OF BUILDINGS SEEN

Structures Erected During 1922 Showed Trend to Higher Standards

The volume of increases in building permits issued throughout the country in 1922 did not increase in proportion to the value of the increases in buildings erected and planned, thus indicating a universal tendency toward larger and more costly types of structures.

Builders recognize the changes which are taking place in the standard of living in this country and are erecting structures to meet the changing requirements of people generally.

These facts are revealed in an analysis of reports received by S. W. Straus & Company late in December from all parts of the country in the preparation of their national building survey.

The closing days of December witnessed an augmented demand for building permits in many important cities, illustrating a tendency toward increased activities for the new year.

In New York City permits for more than $6,000,000 in tenement house construction in the Borough of Manhattan alone were filed during the final days of the month.

In 112 of the leading cities of the country, representing more than 50 per cent of the country's population, the total estimated value of building permits, issued and applied for in December, exceeded $155,000,000, the survey shows.

Throughout December the ratio of construction for residential buildings was about 37 per cent of all types of structures.

OUT FOR RECORD

With two $1,000,000 building months already tucked away toward a 1923 record, it is certain Glendale is headed for a record total for the year.

E. C. THOM ESTATE OPENS AS SUBDIVISION; GLENDALE PEOPLE GET FIRST CHANCE TO INVEST

Well-known Property, Named Bellehurst Park, Now Available; Walter H. Leimert Co., In Charge Of Development and Sale

Glendale people are participating today in the pre-public opening lot sale of Bellehurst Park, the new and beautiful subdivision just opened by the Walter H. Leimert Co.

Bellehurst Park comprises the E. C. Thom estate, famous for many years as the Bellehurst Ranch. The first unit of Bellehurst Park now available to purchasers, consists of the section of the Thom estate nearest to the center of Glendale. The attention of homeseekers, investors, and real estate men has long been focused on this desirable property, and today's announcement that Glendale people only will be given the first chance to select lots in the tract will undoubtedly result in a rush to get the best locations.

Close In Property

Approximately eighty-two acres are included in the first unit now on sale. The southwest corner of this unit is only five blocks north of Broadway and two blocks east of Brand boulevard, practically in the heart of the city and in the very center of the choicest residence section of Glendale. Solidly built up blocks of high class dwellings immediately adjoin the new tract on the south and west, the Verdugo mountains are the northern boundary and additional units will be opened in the near future to the north and east.

Of particular interest to Glendale is the fact that the Walter H. Leimert Company is to be in charge of the development and sale of Bellehurst Park, under the personal supervision of Walter H. Leimert, president of the firm. Leimert was quick to see the wonderful possibilities of this marvelout property and has planned a type of subdivision that will be decidedly better than the usual tract offered in Southern California.

The Walter H. Leimert Company is famous all over the world for their work in developing the Piedmonts and the Lake District residence areas of the east side of San Francisco bay. Much of the charm of those exclusive sections of Berkeley Piedmont and Oakland is due to the foresight and skill of the Walter H. Leimert Company.

Noted Development

Lakeshore Highlands in Oakland the most noted of the Leimert developments ranks with such well known tracts as Roland Park in Baltimore, Forest Hills in New York, St. Francis Wood in San Francisco and Country Club Heights in Kansas City. Bellehurst Park will be of the same delightful character so that every purchaser can feel assured that future developments will fully justify his highest ideals of what an artistic residence community should be.

Another guarantee of the high quality of the development work in Bellehurst Park is the fact that the general contractors are Bates & Boreland Inc., probably the laggest paving contractors in the state. E. W. Tuttle, head of the Los Angeles branch of Bates & Boreland will be in personal charge of the installation of the streets, curbs, walks, and other improvements. The character of

CHANCES BRIGHT FOR LEGISLATION

Head of State Realtors Is Assured Support From Many Sections

Chances of success for the legislative program backed by the realtors of California are bright, according to a letter received this week by a member of the Pasadena Realty Board from Frazier O. Reed,, president of the California Real Estate Association. The legislative program mentioned has received the official endorsement of the Pasadena Realty Board, and its members are much interested in bringing about enactments to raise the standards of the realty business.

Speaking of his canvass of the state Mr. Reed said:

"The qualifications test for realty brokers, which was unanimously indorsed at the state convention, is being widely supported. Many lawmakers with whom I have conversed favor our colonization amendment, which would give the real estate department the right to investigate all land colonization projects, upon its own initiative.

Sentiment Grows

"Word comes to me through our state association news department which is in touch with more than one hundred daily newspapers, and from our wide circle of realty boards, that sentiment is crystallizing steadily in favor of a qualification test for the realty broker, and our strongest support is from the dealers themselves, of whom there were more than 37,000 licensed in our state last year. A board of examiners for the realty broker seems to be mighty popular in this state and is also planned in the state of Ohio.

"Our legislative committee is meeting during the recess of the legislature, and the measures that our association is sponsoring have been introduced only after careful study and consideration had been given to the subjects involved.

"The cornerstone of the real estate organization in California as fairness and justice. We are rendering service, and to the greatest degree plan to make our service efficient, and for the best interests, not only of buyer and seller, but for the good of the community as well."

MORE TERRITORY

In 1887, when the city of Glendale was founded, it ran from Central avenue to Adams street and from Lexington drive to Elk avenue. Since then thirteen districts have been successively added, bringing 10,000 new acres into the city.

FARMING BIGGEST BASIC INDUSTRY

Neglect of Agriculture Will Be Followed by Decay, Realtor Declares

(In the March issue of the California Real Estate Magazine, just issued, appears the following splendid editorial on California farm lands:

By Herman Janss, vice-president, California Real Estate Association: Secretary farm lands division, National Association of Real Estate Boards.)

Agriculture is the mother of civilization. It is the balance wheel of a democratic government. Nothing surer nas been recorded in history than that prosperity follows the plow, and decay surely follows neglect of agriculture.

Visualize the potentialities of the seventy-seven billions of dollars invested in farm lands in the hands of a Napoleon of finance. Visualize a co-operative organization with this capital, and a buying power annually greater than the total capital, surplus and undivided profits of all the banks in the United States. Now take an inventory of conditions as existing. This largest basic industry pays the highest rates of interest to the banks, although offering the largest margin of security, and the greatest asset in the world. Although by far the largest and best customer of transportation, still in most cases it pays the highest rates and does its marketing in a most primitive way.

Co-operation Needed

This can best be illustrated by the condition of the corn farmer. In 1919 he could buy six gallons of gasoline with a bushel of corn, and in 1920 a bushel of corn would not even buy a single gallon of gasoline. Today there is a big over-production of oil, but no corresponding reduction in the price of gasoline, showing you the value of marketing scientifically, with proper credit, storage, and transportation.

Here is a call to you bankers, captains of industry, financiers, and patriots, to co-operate with this industry and bring it to its proper destiny for your greater and permanent prosperity, and for the perpetuation of a lasting civilization.

REALTY BOARD HELPS

The Glendale Realty Board, organized in October, 1920, with an initial membership of twenty firms, now comprises over seventy members, and in addition the salesmen of the various firms, who rank as associate members. This board has had no small part to play in the upbuilding of the Glendale of 1923.

LOS ANGELES IS FIFTH CITY IN U. S.

Estimates Show Southland's Metropolis Advancing by Rapid Strides

Los Angeles is fifth among the cities of the United States in population according to estimates made by Southern California Business, the official magazine of Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. These estimates for the ten largest cities follow:

	1922	1920	1910
N. York	7,885,836	7,638,404	5,402,234
Chicago	2,805,389	2,701,705	2,186,283
Phila.	1,878,733	1,823,779	1,549,008
Detroit	1,099,260	993,678	465,766
Los A.	850,000	576,673	319,198
Cleveland	844,075	796,841	560,663
St. Louis	841,593	772,897	687,029
Boston	825,530	748,060	670,585
B'more	819,962	733,824	558,485
P'burgh	642,683	588,343	534,000

Estimates of the population of these ten cities, with the exception of Los Angeles, are based on the average annual gain for each during the decade from 1910 to 1020. This is considered a fair basis since industrial conditions in these cities during the last two years have not been such as to attract people from the rural districts and restricted immigration has prevented any considerable additions to population from that source. Estimates of Los Angeles population are based on building permits and reports of public service corporations and municipal public service departments.

Realtors Prominent In New Legislature

The directory of the California State Legislature, just issued, contains the names of four assemblymen listed as in real estate or real estate and insurance.

These representatives are Speaker Frank F. Merriam of Long Beach, Joseph F. Burns and Harry F. Morrison of San Francisco, and Fred B. Noyes of Yuba City, according to the State Association News Department.

In the State Senate, realty licenses are held by Senator Egbert J. Gates of Los Angeles, president pro tem. Arthur H. Breed of Oakland and Senator J. A. Rominger of Long Beach. Senator F. A. Arbuckle of Santa Barbara, Ventura district, was the organizer of the Ventura County Realty Board and its first president. Senator Gates has introduced the realty license bill for amendment.

Lieut. Gov. Young of Berkeley is auto a realtor, and has been one of the leaders in real estate license law legislation, in which California has led the world.

Many County Boards Adopt Realtor Title

Latest to join the ranks of the boards of realtors, include the Ontario-Upland, Compton, Long Beach, Sacramento, and the Richmond and Contra Costa real estate boards. They have changed their name to "Board of Realtors" because every member of the board is a realtor—that is, he is a member of a board that is affiliated with the California Real Estate Association, and the National Association of Real Estate Boards. The last named is planning to act on changing its name to the National Realtors Association at its June convention in Cleveland.

The Contra Costa Real Estate Board was formed at Martinez in June, 1921, by Vice-president C A. Ricks, of the California Real Estate Association. The Richmond Real Estate Board was organized in November. Now the two boards have combined as one county unit, to be known as the Contra Costa Board of Realtors.

Vice-President Ricks plans to form a county board of realtors in Solano county, and will also visit the towns of Manteca and Tracy with a view to organizing the realtoy brokers.

Realtors' Wives Form Auxiliary to Board

Wives of Santa Ana realtors took the first steps March 1st to form the first woman's auxiliary to a board of realtors in the United States. Leaders in the movement included Mrs. Frank C. Pope, wife of the board president, Mrs. Everett A. White, wife of the state vice-president, and Mrs. Freeman H. Bloodgood, wife of the retiring president, Mrs. W. L. Salisbury, and Mrs. Carl Mock, chairman.

Rapid Growth Seen In Great Southwest

Southern California is increasing its population at the rate of from 20 to 40 per cent a year, according to the opinion of Assistant Secretary John A. Durby of the Twelfth United States Civil Service District, with headquarters in San Francisco.

Mr. Durby, who recently arrived here on a business trip, declared that since last July thirteen postoffices had been raised from third to second class in this district, which includes California, Nevada and Arizona.

Of these thirteen postoffices which have outgrown their former class, he declared, eleven are in Los Angeles county.

State Realtors Plan Legislative Program

The state realtors legislative committee of which William H. Akin of Los Angeles is chairman, has gotten behind several constructive measures for providing additional safeguards around realty investments.

Colonization of the farm lands is to be made more secure.

Established realty dealers are to be given greater security.

A $2000 bond for realty brokers, payable to the aggrieved party, after court action is proposed, and the state association is also putting forward the bill for a board of realty broker examiners.

This is known as the qualification test measure.

REALTY BUSINESS NEEDS ABLE MEN

Variety of Conditions to Be Faced Here Demand High Standards

"Of all the states in the Union, California makes the heaviest demands upon realtors," says Freeman H. Bloodgood, of Santa Ana, first real estate commissioner in the United States. "Our climate is the most varied, conditioned by a stretch of 850 miles north and south, embracing mighty mountains, vast inland valleys, more than sixty-five different kinds of soil, rainfall varying from nothing to sixty inches annually, temperature ranging the whole gamut of the thermometer, water supply differing widely throughout the state —all these conditions imperatively demand men of keen intellect to grasp, and alertness to keep up to date.

"Then a tremendous responsibility confronts the California realtors because so many of their clients are from eastern states, little versed in conditions here. Our present state license act protects in a way against dishonest dealing, but it does not require any educational qualification. All conscientious realtors realize that the real estate business in California should be a profession, far removed from any symptoms of a game.

Integrity Needed

"Protection of the purchaser and the stabilizing of the profession require a high standard both as to education and integrity. We need a qualification test, whereby a knowledge of the real estate business and the rights and obligations involved in covenanting are assured the public.

"Better service, safer investments, the right people on the right land, more rapid development and increased happiness will follow a higher standard of qualifications on the part of realtors.

"Real estate transactions are basic. All progress harks back to safe and sane leadership of the realtors."

Iced drinks were enjoyed by Romans and the idea was introduced into France in the seventeenth century.

SPRING LURES TO MOUNTAIN TRAILS

Beauties of Sparr Heights Emphasized by Varied Vistas of Hills

Spring is here and all nature is feeling the urge of awakening life. The buds of the pussy-willows by the streams and in the cienegas are beginning to swell, the fruit trees are in blossom, the mountain laurel is in bloom, the mustard patches and the poppy fields are showing great splashes of color, while hillside, slope and valley are a vivid green.

This is the loveliest season of the year in Southern California and in no section of this fair southland are its beauties more in evidence than at Sparr Heights in the favored Verdugo Valley. In this vast tract of 1500 acres, with a most varied topography, one can enjoy every variety of scenic beauty.

The rugged, towering peaks of three great mountain chains can be compassed in all their majesty in one view from Sparr Height. The wonderful oak groves and the secluded canyons invite one to pry into their quiet and seclusion. One can wander over the rolling hills on the many trails that wind through the mesquite and chaparral and breathe the pungent fragrance, so dear to the Californian, of the sage.

Mountain Vistas

To those who are fond of hiking and know the joy of breasting the hillside, who love the view from the mountain's crest, Sparr Heights presents attractions, as a starting point, that are unequalled. On one side are the green Verdugo Hills, commanding a view over Los Angeles, the San Fernando and Verdugo Valleys. On the other side rise the rugged Sierras with trails leading into the Arroyo Seco and up to Mount Lowe, Wilson, Markham, Islip and others.

Fortunate indeed is he who at this season can steal away from the cares of business and tramp into the open spaces where he can come into contact with the big things of nature and get an inspiration that he can secure from no other source.

this pastoral scene laterally. It is a boulevard of eucalyptus trees and rose hedges, with many beautiful homes to left and right, homes varying in architectural type but each perfect of its kind Colonial, Spanish, Swiss, Moorish, the bungalow, the inn, the chateau the homestead, they are all there, each with its own individual touch of lawns, too; some primly green, others given to great clumps of shade trees, still others presenting a homey, "old fashioned garden" coloratura of bloom.

Attractive Scene

Then wave over the scene the magic wand of night—and two worlds of stars meet along the horizon; one the starry world aloft, the other the world of twinkling city lights. It is a scene immeasurably indiscribably lovely.

Everywhere in Southern California, this migration toward the hills is on. And only because it is of such recent origin, does opportunity still knock. Try to get a hillside site in an eastern city, where this thing took place long ago. It is impossible, or nearly so, the prices being prohibitive in any case.

The same story will be true in Southern California, in another decade. Everywhere you turn, the hillside sites are going fast. And nowhere is this more particularly the case than in Glendale.

Only So Much of It

Before the war, you could have bought property along Kenneth road for far, far less than you pay now. But the price you will pay in ten more years will be fabulous compared with what you can buy there for today.

The answer is simple. There is only so much of Southern California, and there is only so much of Kenneth road. When the thing is sold out, reselling commences, with resultant sharp price advances.

Watch and see. And as you watch, will you be "long" or "short" on "Hillside Preferred?" Your fortune is in your judgment.

Do your shopping in Glendale.

REALTY DEALERS STUDY PROBLEMS

License Laws and Taxation Issues at National Board Meeting

The current California Real Estate magazine contains the following statement by Hon. Edwin T. Keiser, state real estate commissioner, who attended the Jacksonville conference of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. California's delegation included fourteen delegates, with W. I. Hollingsworth of Los Angeles, chairman. Forty states and four British provinces were represented. There were 539 delegates. Commissioner Keiser says:

"The program given was very instructive and will be very valuable in an educational way to all present. One of the things that impressed me most, was the apparent interest in all problems affecting real estate.

Taxation Problem

"The tax problem was very ably discussed by Mr. C. T. Moffatt, of Minneapolis. The result of that discussion was the starting of a million dollar endowment fund by taking subscriptions from those present, the proceeds from which are to be spent in special research work on tax problems. This seemed to be the topic that commanded most attention. Unless taxation is handled in the most intelligent way, its effect on real estate will mean disaster and probably confiscation.

"Extreme care and caution should be exercised in the matter of voting bond issues. The public should not be influenced by the politician or orator who is an unsafe leader because of his lack of information and also his inability to analyze the facts that he may have on the proposed bond issue and issues already voted.

Realty Departments

"The delegates at the coovention showed keen interest in the real estate departments of the various states. From the sentiments expressed by the visitors in general discussion, it is very evident that the real estte leaders are determined in their purpose to drive out the crooks by whatever legislation may be necessary. During the entire session, not one delegate to my knowledge expressed himself as being opposed to the real estate license law; to the contrary, all were anxious that their various states enact such legislation where it did not exist already, and many of the states where they have a real estate license law, expressed themselves in favor of amending their present law in order that it might be still stronger.

Point to California

"It was evident that California has not taken a back seat in her legislative efforts. This state is pointed to by those advocating real estate legislation as an example of what can be done under a proper license alw. There were no suggestions from anyone of letting down the bars, but all seemed to be unanimous in their opinion that more teeth should be added to the law already in force.

"From the fact that the realtors of the United States are working along constructive lines in the investigation of real estate problems, and also the way in which they are supporting legislation for the protection of the public against crooks, it is very easy to see that the time is not far distant when the real estate broker will be looked upon as a professional man, one who will command the confidence and respect of the public, similar to that reposed in other professions.

"I am glad to have attended this convention because it offered me an opportunity for consulting with other real estate commissioners, and because of the educational benefits I personally derived from the various conferences."

L. A. TO LEAD IN PUBLIC BUILDING

Survey of Ninety Cities Is Basis for Statement by Straus & Co.

A nation-wide survey of the contemplated expenditure for public buildings by municipalities during 1923, just completed by S. W. Straus & Co., shows that ninety cities have already planned to spend more than $240,000,000 for schools, police, fire and various other administration buildings.

More than a score of other important cities will probably add public appropriations before spring, bringing the total for less than 120 cities up to approximately $300,000,000 and even this is likely to be increased before the year closes.

The sum reported by the ninety cities is exclusive, it must be remembered, of the amounts to be spent for buildings in various cities by the Federal Government.

Los Angeles, the survey shows, will lead all other cities in the United States by spending this year $25,000,000 for public buildings.

Among the ninety cities reporting to S. W. Straus & Co., fifty-one will expend during the year more than $1,000,000 each on public construction and twelve will spend more than $5,000,000 each.

2 MILLION ACRES AWAIT SETTLERS

Room for 100,000 Families In Unoccupied California Land, Says Census

The last United States census shows that there are 2,000,000 acres of land in California with water for irrigation, but not being irrigated. It is either unpeopled or sparsely settled.

If subdivided and improved for intense culture it will provide attractive homes and a comfortable living for 100,000 more families than now live on it. To build the homes, prepare this land for irrigation, equip and plant these farms will require the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars.

To work out plans for the rapid and successful agricultural development of this great area involves problems of great social and economic importance. What should be done to prepare these homes for settlers, where they may be secured, what the improvement of farms will cost and how and where money for agricultural development may be obtained.

These are some of the problems discussed at a land settlement conference held recently at Berkeley.

OPIUM FAVORITE DRUG IN HAWAII

2000 Honolulu Addicts Use $228,000 Annually to Buy Smuggled Dope

By IRENE CORBALLY KUHN
For International News Service

HONOLULU, T. H., March 1.—The head of the narcotic division for the Territory of Hawaii recently issued the statement that Hawaii has approximately 2500 narcotic addicts of all classes. Of this number, however, the majority are users of opium rather than of morphine, cocaine and heroin.

By a series of figures the head of the narcotic division arrived at the conclusion that Hawaii consumes approximately 35,000 cases of opium every year. This amount of the drug, at its present value of $80 to $90 a tin, makes a total expenditure for the smuggled drug of $228,000 a year.

Most in Honolulu

Of the 2500 Hawaiian addicts approximately 2000 live in Honolulu, it is said.

H. H. Wouters, head of the narcotic division, is of the opinion that, despite these figures, the use of narcotics is on the decrease.

"In considering the narcotic situation in Hawaii," he said, "it must be remembered that there is a large Oriental population here and many of them have used opium since their youth. The most serious danger to the life of the community is in the creation of new users of opium."

The Oriental, from long usage through generations, is more or less used to opium, and its effects are not so serious on his health.

BUSINESS KEEPS UP GOOD RECORD

Trust Company's Review of Affairs Shows Steady Increase in Volume

With the exception of seasonal declines the valume of business done over the country is up to the mark set during the last few weeks of last year, according to the digest of trade conditions for February issued by the Central Trust Company of Illinois.

The improvement in business apparent in the early fall continued with steadily increasing volume to the end of the year, the digest says. It notes that some recessions are now in evidence, with decreasing stock exchange operations, a decline in freight car loadings, an increase in business failures, and a decrease in the cut of lumber production, of cement and of ingot steel.

The following instructive items appear in the digest's summary:

The average wholesale price of all commodities at the principal markets, according to the Bankers' Commodity Price Index, on the first of January, was $463.49, compared with $465.76 a month before and $416.64 a year ago. The index showed an average during 1913 of $362.35.

HOLDS NO PERIL OF RED REVOLT

Innate Respect for Order Will Preclude Bolshevism, Says Prince

By LUTHER A. HUSTON
For International News Service

LONDON, March 3.—Although the political and economic situation in Austria is desperate, there is little likelihood of the country being further demoralized by a bolshevist revolt, in the opinion of Prince Joseph de Rohan, head of an ancient Austrian house, who was a recent visitor here from Vienna. The innate respect of Austrians for order, the prince believes, will checkmate all attempts of bolshevism to gain a foothold.

"The deplorable condition of Austria today," the prince said, "shows no sign of an early improvement. The government authorities seem to be wholly at a loss with regard to stabilizing the financial situation. Taxation, the rising cost of living, etc., are whirled upwards, generally with tragic but sometimes with comic effect.

Better in Hungary

"In Hungary the situation is better than in Austria, although there, also, money is all but valueless. Hungary is thoroughly loyal to the monarchial system and in course of time a king will be enthroned.

"With regard to the psychology of the Austrian people, it is quite safe to say that one sees no tendency to seek salvation in revolt. Bolshevism could never become established in Vienna, for the people are orderly and conservative. Nevertheless, the outlook is so bad that it is impossible to see how Austria can carry on

Need Outside Help

"It is difficult to conceive how Austria can solve her economic problems without powerful cooperation from the outside.

"I believe in the future of the Austrian and Hungarian people, for they have the will to survive their present trials with fortitude. It seems that large populations which have been absorbed by neighboring states are by no means happy under their new rule, but of this I know nothing personally."

Prince de Rohan disclaimed the possibility of the reunion of Austria with Germany and declared his own disapproval of such an arrangement.

FAVORS ROD FOR BAD GRAMMAR

Judge Says Teacher Right In 'Hiding' Boy Who Couldn't Define Split Infinitive

UTICA, N. Y., March 3. — The rod rules supreme today in Mohawk Valley schools.

East Herkimer's famed split infinite-schoolboy thrashing case, which turned the village into two factions and engendered much bitter feeling, came to an end when County Judge George A. Bell at Herkimer decided that a teacher may thrash a grade school pupil with a rubber hose for not knowing the definition of a split infinitive.

"Teachers must be in authority and have control in a school," holds the Herkimer jurist, in a picturesque decision which orders the reversal of the conviction of Robert H. Petrie, schoolmaster.

Cites Old Precedent

"Charles the Second of England was once forced to remove his hat in the presence of a schoolmaster," quotes the jurist, in setting forth the authority and respect that must be shown to pedagogues.

Charles Engell, 15, could not answer when Schoolmaster Petrie asked him to define a split infinitive on the morning of October 30 last. Petrie, it was testified, then took an 18-inch length of rubber hose and thrashed the pupil. Pomeroy Engell, the boy's father, had Petrie arrested for assault in the third degree. Justice of the Peace C. H. Goodrich found Petrie guilty and fined him $25. Petrie appealed.

Judge Bell vindicates Petrie

The decision in the case, which attracted the attention of school authorities throughout the country, follows:

"According to the evidence rendered in this case, there is no doubt in my mind as to whether or not there was an assault on Charles Engell. It was very plain to me that there was.

Boy Not Injured

"It does not appear by any witness, including this boy, that he was physically injured or hurt in the slightest degree, or in any manner, or received any marks or was caused any bodily pain whatever as a result of this chastisement, or that he at any time complained of being physically hurt or injured in the slightest degree or in any manner. It does not appear but that this boy is of full size for his age and in good health. No anger or passion or malice on the part of this teacher was shown.

"Section 246, Penal Law, which follows the assault section, provides: 'To use or attempt, or suffer to use, force or violence upon or toward the person of another is not unlawful in the following cases:

"'4. When committed by a parent or the authorized agent of any parent, or by any guardian, master, or teacher in the exercise of a lawful authority to restrain or correct his child, ward, apprentice or scholar and the force of violence used is reasonable in manner and moderate in degree.'

Was Parent's Job

"It will be noticed that the same rule applies to a teacher as to a parent; and I am sure that if the father or mother of this boy had done just what this teacher did and had been arrested there would not have been a conviction.

"On account of the difficulty which exists in determining what is a reasonable punishment and the advantage which the master has by being on the spot to know all circumstances, the manner, look, tone, gesture and the language of the offender, which are not always described, and thus to form a correct opinion as to the necessity and extent of the punishment, considerable allowance should be made to the teacher by the way of protecting him in the exercise of his discretion.

"Especially should he have this indulgence when he appears to have acted from good motives and not from anger and malice.

Teacher Supreme

"A teacher must be in authority and have control in a school. If not there would be no school. Many years ago a learned and judicious schoolmaster said to Charles the Second, in the plenitude of his power, 'Sire, pull off thy hat in my school, for if my scholars discover that the King is above me in authority they will soon cease to respect me!' and the King pulled off his hat to demonstrate by example that the schoolmaster's authority should be respected even by a king.

"The evidence in this case shows that this chastisement was reasonable in manner and moderate in degree."

Benmar Hills
BURBANK
The City Beautiful

Where a Model City Will Grow Up Around Your Home

Southern California has many attractive subdivisions in which to make your home.

But has only one BENMAR HILLS—only one enterprise destined to be more than a subdivision—more than a suburb—a beautifully located, perfectly planned, model American city!

The nucleus is the present thriving city of Burbank, city of assured greatness. Farsighted men have easily perceived that Burbank must expand, with swift, gigantic steps. And they have made provision so that, when that expansion has reached a population of 100,000 people, there will have been developed an attractive, healthful, well balanced city, complete in every essential. This superb purpose will be carried out at BENMAR HILLS, a property of approximately 3000 acres, which, taking the western part of the present City of Burbank, sweeps from the San Fernando boulevard up the slopes to the summits of the green Verdugo Hills.

Unsurpassed in its scenic beauty, in its climate, in its natural advantage, BENMAR HILLS fills every requirement of its mighty purpose—a purpose already officially recognized by the City of Burbank.

The city has built its new $250,000 high school on a Benmar Hills site—it has chosen another location there for a new grammar school. Deeds have also been accepted by the city's officials to a 20-acre site for a Model Civic Center—to parks, athletic grounds and public auto park—and they have also sanctioned the completely planned system of boulevards and parked streets prepared for BENMAR HILLS. "The City Beautiful" will have clubs, churches, schools—every public institution necessary to its welfare.

And Your Home in the Midst of It All

Calculate the value of property in a city like that, as compared with the low price at which you can buy it now. Better still, picture yourself a resident of that community, in full enjoyment of advantages without parallel in any other city in the land.

TREAT TREES IN PATTERSON PARK

Chemical Restores Drooping Cypress and Redwood, Observers Claim

A number of trees that have been growing in Patterson park and that were slowly dying are now showing signs of revival, owing to treatment with Plantpep, the invention of City Industrial Commissioner Gustav Rasmus, according to the testimony of unbiased witnesses who have kept in touch with the experiments conducted with the trees.

Among those treated were several cypress trees, a redwood and a pine, and in every case the trees began showing signs of improvement within a few days of the time the Plantpep was administered to their roots, in one case only fifty hours being required before those following the treatment were able to notice signs of life in a tree that had been considered as being beyond all hope of recovery.

City officials who have been watching the results achieved by the Rasmus treatment are planning to have other trees and vegetation around the city property treated in the same manner.

Greek Who Went Home Found Peck of Trouble

ATHENS, Ohio, March 3.—Arthur Feffis, Greek candy maker, cleaned up a small fortune and left for Athens, Greece, his native city, in 1912 for a visit. He was inducted into the army and went through so many wars he cannot remember all of them, although he does know his money is all gone. He was a naturalized American citizen.

Broomstick Is Taken From Heifer's Throat

JERSEYVILLE, Ill., March 3.—To dislodge an ear of corn from the throat of a Shorthorn heifer, whose greed for the grain resulted in her swallowing it whole, Fred Breitweiser used a broom handle. The handle broke and a veterinary surgeon performed an operation to extract two feet of the stick which remained in the cow's throat. The heifer is recovering at the Breitweiser farm.

THOM ESTATE IS NOW ON MARKET

Glendale People Get First Chance to Invest in Fine Property

work done by this firm is best shown by the fact that they are now constructing the million dollar memorial stadium at the University of California, and the four million dollar San Pablo dam for the East Bay Water Company. Bates and Borcland have worked with the Walter H. Leimert Company before, in developing the Piedmont, and Lakeshore Highlands as well as many other tracts similar to Bellehurst Park.

Advance Sale Opens

Bellehurst Park is now open for advance sale although the construction work only started yesterday. Tractors are pulling out full bearing orange, lemon, and olive trees to make room for the new streets and the street lines are outlined merely by the plow, but with the large force of men, tractors and teams available the entire layout of streets and lots will soon be easily discernible.

As soon as development work has progressed a little further a tremendous advertising and selling campaign is to be started covering all of Southern California, according to Lawrence Block, director of sales for the Leimert Company. The present pre-public sale is for Glendale people only as it was felt that many of the citizens who have already signified their faith in Glendale by settling here are really entitled to special consideration in the opening of a tract of this character.

Opening prices according to Block are fully 30 per cent below the actual value of similar property in built-up blocks next door. Exceptionally attractive terms of payment may be arranged and a large volume of sales to Glendale people is confidently expected before the real opening sale begins. This will probably be within ten days.

Rapid Transportation

Improvements include paved streets, gutters, curbs, side walks, water, gas, electricity, and telephone service on every lot. Pacific Electric trains pass every twenty minutes within two blocks, offering exceptionally rapid transportation facilities.

Restrictions prohibiting the erection of temporary buildings, duplexes, bungalow courts, apartments, and similar undesirable structures protect absolutely the future value of the tract. Other restrictions conform to the very best residence areas of the city. A very limited area has been set aside as a commercial center.

A new tract office on the property opens this morning. It can best be reached by driving north on Brand boulevard for six blocks past Broadway and then turning to the right on Dryden street for two blocks. Pacific Electric trains drop passengers at Dryden street, within two blocks of this office.

A Glendale office has also been opened by the Walter H. Leimert Company at 246 Brand boulevard at Colorado boulevard. Maps and prices on all lots are available either at the tract or at the downtown headquarters.

EARLY SPRING IS GARDENING TIME

Fertilizing and Enriching of Soil Paves Way for Sturdy Growths

These early spring days should be the busiest in the year for the gardener, either professional or amateur, who wishes to make the best of seasonal conditions.

It is the proper time to plant and transplant practically all trees and shrubs, and the majority of flowering plants.

It is the best season for enriching the soil and for thorough spading of the ground.

Fruit trees, roses, bush fruits, and all deciduous things can be handled best and most economically at this time, and may be moved with bare roots.

This is their normal season of dormancy, during which they may be handled with no danger of loss, if ordinary precautions are taken to prevent excessive drying of the roots while they are out of the ground.

Fertilize Garden

The garden, generally, should be enriched with well rotted manure and deeply spaded.

Heavy soils that tend to sour or to retain the moisture unduly should be treated with land-plaster or lime.

Pruning of deciduous trees, shrubs and vines may be done generally if it has not already been cared for.

Such plants, however, as lilacs, the wistaria, spiraeas and their like that produce flowers on the old wood should not be cut back until after their flowering seasons.

All growing plants may be fertilized.

It is, generally, an act of extravagance to enrich plants that are lying dormant, because of the fact that much of the fertilizer is carried away with surface and soil moisture before the plant has an opportunity to assimilate it.

It thus becomes best to do the fertilizing as the plants commence their spring awakening.

The majority of flowering annuals and perennials may be put into the ground at once.

Plant Seeds Now

Only the more tender things, such as elephant ears, dahlias and asters, need be withheld from planting for another month or so.

Seeds of the following flowers may be sown at once: Acrolinium, alyssum, antirrhinum, calendula, calliopsis, celosia, cosmos, chrysanthemum, escholtzia, gaillardia, larkspur, linum, lupinus, mignonete, nemophila, nigella, poppies and sweet peas. These may be sown in the open ground.

Also sow balsam, begonia, gloxinia, lobelia, pyrethrum, scabiosa, verbena, salvia and petunia in seed flats, to be set into the open ground later.

Transplant carnations, pansies, stock, shasta daisies and verbenas.

Continue to plant anemones, ranunculus, German iris, Japanese iris, lilies, gladiolus, agapanthus and amaryllis.

Work done in the garden, now, will yield relatively greater returns than at any other time, granting that the garden is properly watered after the hot, dry season sets in.

ONLY MUSEUM OF KIND IN WORLD

Negro and Suffragist Dolls Represent America; School Teaches Toy Making

By ADELE PARKER,
For International News Service

MOSCOW, March 3.—The artist, Nikolai Bartram, a painter of Kustarney art, is responsible for the Toy Museum of Moscow, the only toy museum in the world. Bartram had been the curator of one of the collections of Kustarney art in Moscow, and two years ago, at his suggestion, a toy museum, drawing chiefly on peasant art, was esttablished at Smolensk Boulevard, and now Bartram, who, along with an aristocratic bearing, has a "way with children," is in charge of this museum and is called by the children by the affectionate name of "Uncle Musee."

Has Fine Collection

The museum has a fine collection of the dolls and wooden sculptured animals made by the peasants. It has also a small stage with all the trappings of a theatre. Puppet plays are given, and there is a large collection of the marionettes. There are also masks, some of them very old and valuable, as part of the stage properties. There are dolls of all nations, heathen and Christian.

America is represented by two very clever negro dolls and a woman suffragist!

There is a talking book from Germany, which at every page can be made to give a different cry, according to the animals represented in the picture; there are music boxes from everywhere; there are military displays; and recent additions are distressed bourgeois dolls and triumphant proletariat dolls made by the peasants.

Many Children Visit

Last year 35,000 children visited this museum, including 300 children's excursions with guides and systematic instruction. But the museum is popular in the deepest sense of the word. Every day long before the opening of the museum children gather at the door to be ready at the first moment. Some children visit it every day. The favorite toys a the animals, especially a wooden cow bigger than a cat which all the little girls take turns at milking.

PLAN MISSION IN HILLS OF VERDUGO

Structure As Monument to Early Californians; Idea Gets Indorsement

It was at the missions that the Indians gave up their savagery for Christian gentleness, finding in Father Serra and his helpers help and encouragement.

It was at the missions that Indians and Spaniards, padres and Englishmen gathered for the pleasure of the gala days, when gifts for the missions, dancing and song, feasting and services of thanksgiving, were featured events.

The passing years have borne away those early days; stately crosses have long marked the final resting places of padres and dons, and California is the busy scene of the onward march of modern civilization.

But the sandled foot-prints of the Mission fathers are still outlined on the Camino Real and branching highways, still leading over hill and mesa to twenty-one historic points, where the spirit and romance of those early days are perpetuated by the ruins of the old missions, many of which have been restored to stand as monuments to California's pioneers.

Twenty-Second Mission

And now, 150 years after the Franciscan missions flourished, John Steven McGroarty, California's adopted son, in whose pen masterpieces burns a fire of inspiration for immortalizing the memory of the early days, urges the building of a twenty-second mission.

It is to be called the Mission of San Juan Evangelista, "Mission of Saint John the Evangelist," to stand in a wonderful setting among the live oaks of Manzanita park, near the peaceful hills, a symbol of reverent faith and devotion.

"Let other communities do commonplace things, we will do this great thing," was the message of Mr. McGroarty to the people of Tujunga.

"I would like to have Tujunga transformed into a Spanish village when our mission is founded," continued Mr. McGroarty, "all the women in Spanish dresses and the men in boleros and red sashes. It will indeed be a gala day, when this valley will receive 200,000 or more visitors."

Huge Cross on Hill

On the hill above the mission site there will stand a huge cross, hewn from the trees in the nearby mountains, and borne on the shoulders of Indians, who will put it in its place.

Upon the completion of the mission a great founding ceremony will be held. It will be like the events of old. A great pageant of Spanish soldiery, Indians and Franciscan priests will journey across the valley to the hillside cross, and, for the first time in 120 years, the trumpeter's mass will be heard in California.

Mr. McGroarty's plans have been heartily received and already support of the project has been offered. Seymour Thomas, well known portrait painter of La Crescenta, has expressed a desire to execute a great painting above the altars of the mission, depicting John, the beloved disciple, kneeling at the foot of the cross. Mr. Thomas and five of his friends will do other mural work in the mission chapel.

Glendale to Share

And Glendale is to have an outstanding share, for Mr. McGroarty has announced that a prominent Glendale man has expressed the desire to become the donor of the mission's bell.

In addition the war department has consented to send a battery of artillery from Fort McArthur to fire a salute when the host is raised before the cross on the day of consecration.

"Some time this summer, if God spares us, we will build this mission and raise another cross to the King of Glory in the Verdugo Hills," says Mr. McGroarty, in his eager anticipation of the building of the Mission of San Juan Evangelista, to be a monument to those who created the wonderful historic background for the California of today.

Lisbon Revolt Looms Result Food Prices

LONDON, March 3.—Although nothing has appeared in the newspapers of Lisbon beyond the announcement of the fact of the recent arrest and deportation of two army officers, says a Reuter dispatch from the Portuguese capital, there is a widespread feeling that the country may be heading for a revolution soon. At least, the dispatch adds, there is grave danger of serious riots in Lisbon which, if they materialize, the police may not be strong enough to suppress.

The chief cause for the discontent is the high cost of living. Tomorrow the best quality of bread will be 150 per cent dearer, while other qualities will be proportionately increased in price. Sugar also will be higher.

The workmen declare that, although they are earning good wages, all their money is being spent for food. There is talk of looting bakers' and grocers' shops.

AID DEVELOPMENT

The Glendale Chamber of Commerce, with 1000 members, is one of the most potent forces for progress and development in the city. It may be described as the hub from which radiate all the spokes of activity.

OFFICIAL SCORES POOR ZONE LAWS

Intrusion of Commercial Buildings Among Homes Causes Huge Loss

That hundreds of millions of dollars are lost every year as a result of the lack of proper zoning laws, was a statement made by Dr. John M. Gries, chief of the division of building and housing of the department of commerce, before officials of the bureau of standards in a talk outlining some of the work his division is doing.

Dr. Gries stated that the large amount is lost in the form of scrapped buildings and depreciated real estate values, resulting from the intrusion of undesirable commerce into residential districts. The present situation in many cities Dr. Gries compared to a house in which the bookcase is in the bathroom and the kitchen stove in the parlor. He explained that in some of the better residential districts the value of each house may be reduced a thousand dollars or more through the construction in that district of a factory or other structure not properly belonging there.

Dr. Gries recommended adequate zoning laws as a preventive, and explained how the division is co-operating with communities all over the country that are preparing zoning regulations. A zoning primer and a "standard state zoning enabling act" authorizing cities to zone have been widely distributed. He also stressed the necessity for city planning in municipalities expecting to grow, and stated that the division was preparing data on this subject which will be made available.

Gives House Costs

Figures were given showing the relative importance of the different items of construction costs for a certain house. Of these, labor charges accounted for only 26 per cent; materials cost 29.3 per cent; land, 19 per cent; contractor, 12.6 per cent; financing, 6.7 per cent; architect and real estate fees, 6.4 per cent. These figures show that it is not generally possible to blame one single factor, such as high labor or material costs, for high prices of houses. He said that while the daily wage of building tradesmen might seem high to a man employed all the year, they were not necessarily high when the seasonal character of the employment was considered. He said a substantial saving in labor costs could be realized if arrangements could be made for employment during a larger part of the year. He also said similar savings in costs of equipment and contractors' overhead could be effected by a more extended building season.

It was pointed out that the building code committee of the Department of Commerce, appointed by Secretary Hoover, has recently published a report entitled "Recommended Minimum Requirements for Small Dwelling Construction". It covers one and two-family dwellings, with an extensive discussion of the reasons for the requirements, and the best types of construction for various purposes. Dr. Gries said that this pamphlet should prove useful to architects and prospective home owners. In this connection, many tests were performed at the bureau of standards to determine the strength, fireproofness, and other qualities of types of building construction, the bureau having made available for that purpose a huge testing machine in which full size sections of walls can be crushed to determine their strength, and a furnace in which their resistance to fire can be tested.

Among other things, this book shows that eight-inch walls are strong enough for two-story houses, and three stories under certain conditions. It recommends that they be permitted instead of the twelve-inch walls now required in many codes.

Floor loads of forty pounds per foot for timber construction, and thirty for monolithic types, are considered sufficient as a basis for calculation of strength, instead of the sixty and seventy pound load now required in some cities.

Plumbing Rules

The plumbing code committee is making out a report dealing with the rules and regulations necessary for plumbing equipment. Many of these are based on tests which have been made on plumbing equipment at the bureau of standards and are expected to make possible substantial economies as compared with many of the regulations now in effect.

Good house plans eliminate waste by striking at the source, and the division co-operates with the Architects' Small House Service Bureau, a non-profit making organization which has already prepared a series of over two hundred plans for houses of from three to six rooms. These plans are available at costs averaging about $25.00 for complete working drawings, specifications, bills of materials and contract forms.

The Small House Bureau designs represent the best modern practice, and make it possible for the man of moderate means to embody in his house the economies and many of the less expensive conveniences ordinarily embodied in the larger houses whose owners can afford to hire an architect. As standards of building construction and materials are developed as a result of the recommendations and experiments of the department of commerce, they will be included in the designs.

Different types of houses have been designed to meet the climatic conditions of different parts of the country as well as differences in materials available and in the income of home builders.

CALIFORNIA CUT OF FORESTS HIGH

Timber Production Breaks Previous Records in National Domain

Breaking all records, the 1922 timber cut of the seventeen national forests of California climbed to 217,000,000 board feet, an increase of 73 per cent over 1921; according to a report by District Forester Paul G. Redington. Receipts in payment for this timber totaled $663,000, or an increase of 115 per cent over the preceding year. The record sale of the year was on the Lassen National Forest, where a billion feet of timber was placed under a thirty-year contract with the California Fruit Growers' Supply Company. This was the largest timber sale made in any of the 147 national forests of the country.

The total cut of lumber from the national forests of California for the ten-year period 1913 to 1922, inclusive, amounted, to 934,000,000 board feet, valued at $2,254,000 on the stump. 25 per cent of the receipts from the cut of timber are returned to the counties in which the national forests are located, and an additional 10 per cent is expended by the forest service on local road and trail construction.

NEW SUBDIVISION PROVES POPULAR

Hamlin & Hepburn Tell of Good Demand for Lots In Sunset Grove

Hamlin & Hepburn's new subdivision, Sunset Grove, is attracting much attention and selling rapidly. Spots covered with fruit trees are in demand, and full size lots at prices around $1000 in a section that is developing as fast as this are very popular.

Terms of $100 down and $20 and $25 per month enables a builder to buy for future use with a minimum investment, and this applies also to people who want a choice homesite in a restricted district to build on at some future time. By purchasing now, it is possible to take advantage of the increase in value which is taking place.

"Glendale is the fastest growing city in America, and no one can fail to make money in an investment of this kind," says Hamlin & Hepburn.

Reds Bow to Krupp Money, Is Claim

BERLIN, March 3—The recently ratified Krupp concession with the soviet government giving the great German concern a tract of 65,000 acres in southern Russia to exploit as an agricultural enterprise, shows that the bolshevists have now made further concessions to the hated capitalists in order to obtain foreign assistance in developing and restoring the resources of exhausted Russia.

Hitherto the bolshevists have insisted that concessions should be exploited by mixed companies, in which the soviet state would have a large, if not controlling, interest. The Krupp concession departs from that principle, the state holding no stock in the enterprise.

The state receives during the first three years of the thirty-six year concession 10 per cent of the products of the land, 15 per cent during the next three years, and then 17½ per cent for the remaining thirty years. At the end of that time land, equipment and livestock become the property of the soviet government.

So long as the concession is in force, however, this little Krupp domain becomes virtually a state within a state, as the soviet government may not interfere with the measures of the company. The latter is permitted to engage foreigners for 50 per cent of the force and 75 per cent of the officials.

The tract, which is in the Don Cossack territories, is to be run as a model farm, using the latest tractors and other mechanical farm equipment manufactured by the Krupp works.

ARRAIGN TWO ON KILLING CHARGE

Glendale Man Accused of Complicity in Death of Frank Johnson

Seth Donaldson of 225 South Glendale avenue today was arraigned in a Los Angeles court room yesterday on a charge of murder.

Since the slaying last Sunday night of Frank Johnson, who lived in Glendale at the same address, Donaldson has been held in the county jail without bail. Mrs. Pearl "Cosey" Peden of 4532 York boulevard is charged with the crime of murder also by Deputy District Attorney Tom McClelland.

According to Donaldson's story, Mrs. Peden incited Johnson and himself to "beat up" Chester Wagomann, with whom she had come to California from Columbus, Ohio, while awaiting a divorce from her husband in the east.

Mrs. Peden, Johnson and Donaldson went to 1154 West Avenue Sixty-four but encountered Anthony L. Whitley instead of Wagomann. Whitley asserts that Johnson attempted to draw a gun. In self-defense he is alleged to have mortally stabbed Johnson with his pocket knife. Whitley is not being held in the case.

BRITAIN'S BOLD FRONT UPON FOREIGN DEBTS INCREASING TAXES, CRUSHING INUSTRY

Obligations Acknowledged and Also Partly Liquidated But People Heavy Laden and Unemployment Further Develops

By LUTHER A. HUSTON
For International News Service

LONDON, March 3.—Great Britain has been more or less feverishly engaged since the war in that unrenumerative pastime scripturally described as "robbing Peter to pay Paul."

LUTHER A. HUSTON

By industriously transferring huge sums from one pocket to another, John Bull has been able to show a bulging purse to that part of the world that made inquiry as to his ability to pay his debts. Those who have taken a peek into the other pocket, however, have been appalled at its cavernous emptiness.

This second pocket is the one into which British taxpayers have been pouring a continuous stream of golden sovereigns. For the financial year of 1921-22 John Bull's national income was 1,124,800,000 pounds. Of this huge sum 501,636,000 pounds was paid in direct taxes by the citizens of Great Britain. Included in these taxes were imposts on automobiles, estate duties, land and house taxes, property and income taxes, excess profits duties and corporation taxes. Customs and excises, which ultimately are paid by the British consumer, yielded 324,343,000 pounds and "miscellaneous and special receipts," the burden of which largely fell upon the people, yielded 197,140,000 pounds.

Thus the staggering sum of 1,023,119,000 pounds, which, at the prevalent rate of exchange, amounts to approximately $4,706,347,400, was taken last year, directly or indirectly, from the pockets of British taxpayers.

Industry Bears Brunt

By far the greater burden of this taxation has fallen upon British industry. Business has paid a terrific toll as a result of the financial burdens imposed upon England by the war. Baldly stated this toll has brought British industry to the verge of stagnation.

This condition was not denied by Premier Andrew Bonar Law, himself a shrewd business man, in a recent address in parliament. Discussing the problem of inter-allied debts and reparations, the prime minister said:

"We have made our central financial position strong. Our budget position is very good. The central financial organization has become strong and rich because it has made the taxpayers poor.

"Can anyone imagine that we could have taken these enormous sums from industry without seriously weakening the possibility of industrial expansion, or even its continuance? The bulk of big business is carried on by credit, and the knowledge of what firms have already paid and might be liable to pay is one of the obstacles in the way whenever they go to the banks for credit for further expansion."

Continuing, the premier declared that unless there is a distinct improvement in trade "within a reasonable time" a position will be reached that will be "worse, almost, than that of any of the allied countries."

The premier thus made plain that in building up a strong financial position, which means a position that would enable England to meet its obligations to other nations, industry has been sacrificed. Deflation in England has been checked but at the cost of a strong internal financial position.

The serious problem of unemployment in Great Britain is an outgrowth of this industrial sacrifice. With industry unable to maintain its normal course of development and expansion the demand for labor has been curtailed. More than 1,000,000 men have been out of work in England this winter and have brought tremendous pressure for relief upon the government. The government has paid more than a hundred million pounds for unemployment relief, but this has by no means taken care of the needs of the situation.

Although admitting its seriousness, government ministers and industrial leaders do not regard the situation as hopeless. They see two means by which relief may be obtained.

Relief in Sight

For the government's part it is relying upon a settlement of the reparations problem and arrangements for the funding of its foreign debts to remove the necessity for further immediate taxation to maintain its central financial strength. This will enable it to lessen the toll industry and the individual taxpayer will have to pay.

Industry, with a lighter burden of taxation impending, is cheered by brighter trade prospects. Recent returns of British trade show a marked increase in the value of exports and imports. This is taken as an indication of increased prosperity that is distinctly heartening.

Individuals, burdened with income and other taxes that in some cases verged upon confiscation are cheered by a prospect of alleviation of these burdens.

Thus, while the immediate situation is admittedly critical, the viewpoint of British leaders is that solutions impend that augur an early improvement.

Aware Touch of Mystery Makes Them More Alluring and Bewitching

By EDNA LEE BOOKER
For International News Service

SHANGHAI, March 3. — According to Mrs. Ernest Thompson Seton, here following a tour of Egypt, the beautiful women of Egypt do not wish to give up their veils, because they realize that they are more alluring, bewitching and mysterious with the veil than without it.

The Egyptian women of all classes are very fascinating, declares Mrs. Seton. With their dark eyes, clear olive complexions and graceful carriage, they are more striking than any other women in the world.

Active Politically

Although they are taking a prominent part in the politics of the country they are not laying aside their feminine charms to take on the masculine ways of their husbands.

No, indeed, the beauties of the Nile have the wisdom of Egypt back of them—and they are winning their way politically through charms and brains rather than by bomb-throwing.

Mrs. Seton was amazed to find the women of wealth highly educated. They speak many languages and carry on their conversation in their gorgeous and luxurious salons in French. They wear imported French creations and enjoy French cooking.

Queen "Stunning"

The present Queen of Egypt is a stunning woman, who is looking for an opening in her gilded cage. According to Mrs. Seton, she has never traveled, and her great ambition is to see the Rocky Mountains. She is a great reader and follows the doings of her sisters in America and Europe with great interest.

"I have a little daughter," said the young queen, with large, dark eyes glowing, "and I hope that by the time she is grown the old customs shutting in our women will have been discarded, and she will be able to go about like an American girl and see the world."

Mrs. Seton is making a study of the women of China and is keenly interested in the "new woman" she is meeting, who believes in education, suffrage, tea, and dancing.

Wayward Youth Scorned Advice of Father and Mother Who Invoke Law

By DOUGLAS G. TINSLEY,
For International News Service

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 3.—They stood in the almost deserted courtroom—the four members of a little family—while one of the strangest scenes that ever took place within the walls of a courthouse was enacted. For a father and mother were sending their boy to the penitentiary—"for his own salvation," they told the court.

Claire Branson, 19 years old, today is behind the grim walls of the Missouri penitentiary, serving a two year sentence for forging his father's name to two checks.

Law Invoked

Over and over again he visualizes the scene in the Jackson County Criminal Court, when his father and mother turned him over to the law. On one side of him stood his father, sad-faced and with downcast eyes; on the other his gray-haired mother, the wells of her faded eyes dried up after years of weeping over the waywardness of her "baby." Behind him, as he faced the judge, was an older brother, who had spent many sleepless nights searching for the prodigal who would not remain at home.

"Here is our boy, to whom we cannot be father and mother. He is our youngest, and we have failed. Take him," the parents said to the law. And the law took him. Almost from infancy Claire had been willful and headstrong. When he grew toward manhood time and again he forged the name of his father to check after check. He got into other trouble and preferred the companionship of criminals and dissolute characters to the society of his parents and the comfortable home they provided for him. Again and again the father reasoned with the boy, while the mother, red eyed from weeping, pleaded with him to abandon his evil associations. The youth turned a deaf ear to all pleas. Finally, again he forged his father's name to two checks totalling $20.

Parents Helpless

In the quiet of their home, while the boy ran the streets, the parents communed together and decided that to save him from himself and break the influence that was about him they would send him to prison.

"We've done the best we could for him," the mother said. "We feel that he can't have any worse associates where he is going than he has had."

So the father swore out a warrant against his own son, and he was arrested. Defiantly the boy pleaded guilty when arraigned and was sentenced to the "gray, grim walls."

A minute later the boy had been led away. His parents and brother quietly left the courtroom. Throughout the ordeal they had not spoken and had not shown any outward sign of emotion. But in the hallway the mother's eyes filled with tears. After all, he was her "baby," and the law had taken him.

Shows Americanism, Secures Citizenship

Miss Rose Pelger

Miss Rose Pelger did not live in American territory for five continuous years after taking out her first citizenship papers, as required by law. For when the great war came on she went overseas and served for years as a nurse. Now she is back in the Chicago hospital for service men, and Federal Judge Wilkerson has granted her application for final citizenship papers despite the technicality, calling her a "good American."

MONARCHISTS SEE END OF ROYALTY

Alarmed at Precedent Set by Duke's Engagement; King, Queen Approve

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service

LONDON, March 3.—Royalists and those who are great sticklers for royal precedents profess to see in the betrothal of the Duke of York and Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon the possibility of the end of the British monarchy.

It is true that the marriage of this scion of the royal family and the daughter of an earl, who is outside the rank of royalty, will establish a precedent. It would have been next to impossible twenty years ago for the son of a reigning monarch—and one who is but one step removed from direct succession to the throne—to have married outside the rank of royalty. In the old days a marriage of this sort would have necessarily been morganatic.

Royalists Alarmed

Where is this going to stop? That is the question the royalists are asking. The King and Queen have approved the match, and it will be popular with the British subjects, but suppose the Prince of Wales chooses to go further and select for himself a bride who is not even of the peerage! If the heir to the throne ever marries the daughter of a commoner, then the end of the monarchy will be in sight, the royalists declare, and they almost shudder at the thought, for they know the Prince of Wales has a will of his own.

Monarchies are kept alive by evolution, by the intermarriage of royalty with royalty, it is claimed. The ex-kaiser is quoted as authority for this, even though it may be strange to quote the ex-kaiser for any precedent these days. When one of the ex-kaiser's sons married the Countess Bassewitz, he was forced to marry morganatically, the ex-kaiser stating that "the very existence of a royal family depends upon keeping it a family royal by birth on both sides."

Royalty in Trade?

Just supposing, the royalists gasp, that royalty comes to have cousins and nephews, and the like, who are in trade! Imagine an ordinary cigar wholesaler addressing a future king as "Cousin Al!" That would spell the end of royalty's dignity, and when dignity is gone, then royalty is gone.

These are the horrible consequences that are prophesied of royalty marrying outside the rank of royalty.

The royalists profess to be worried over the situation, but the British public doesn't appear to be worried at all—on the contrary, the public is rejoicing. They are glad to see their men of royalty with sufficient independence to choose the women of their choice, irrespective of their rank.

The exclusive caste spirit in England is rapidly passing. The Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, Prince Henry and Prince George seem to be jubilantly pushing it on its way.

DEED RESTORES RICHES TO HEIRS

Instrument Conveying Rich Oil Lands to Laborer Is Proven Forgery

By CHESTER B. BAHN
For International News Service

SYRACUSE, N. Y., March 3.—Oil lands estimated at approximately $1,500,000 were restored to the Central New York heirs of Isaac Sayles when a jury in United States court at Fort Worth deliberated 30 hours and branded as a forgery a deed conveying 92 acres in Stephens county to Mr. and Mrs. Sam Evans and Judge W. D. Johnson, all residents of Texas City. The victory assures a fortune to 24 heirs of Sayles, is was announced today, several of them residents of Central New York.

When Boom Starts

Sayles was a resident of Waverly for a great many years before moving west. He was living in Texas when the oil boom started and purchased more than 1,500 acres of land in territory where oil worth millions gushed from wells and made hundreds of persons rich. Sayles was taken ill in 1920 and died in Glenwood Springs, Colorado.

Six months after his death two deeds to his vast oil holdings appeared in Texas. One covered 1,482 acres in Youngs county, where the oil has been appraised at $7,000,000, and the other covered the Stephens county lands, valued at $1,500,000.

The triumph of the Sayles heirs in the fight to establish their rights to the Stephens county lands will be followed next month in Texas by a battle over the Youngs county properties.

Called Forgery

The Stephens county land deed purporting to have been made by Sayles to Tom Overbeck, a laborer, was branded as a forgery by the heirs as soon as it was recorded. Overbeck vanished and has never been found, although detectives spent several months trying to trace him.

Evidence was offered by the heirs of Sayles to prove Overbeck's disappearance, the death of the notary who took acknowledgment of the deed and to show the notary's records were burned after his death. The trial before Judge James Wilson lasted several days in the United States court at Fort Worth.

TURN FIRST SOIL AT LIBRARY SITE

Gift of Anonymous Donor Enables Oxy College to Start Work

Ground was broken yesterday for a new library at Occidental College which will surpass anything of that nature yet built in Southern California. W. Harold Sloan, president of the student body, turned over the first spade of earth on the new library site. Miss Sarah Lindsey, president of the associated women students, gracefully turned the second spade of soil. President Bird and Dean Burt represented the faculty.

The entire student body gathered around the scene of celebration and made the surrounding hills tremble with several mighty college yells. President Bird briefly outlined the plan for the enlarging of the campus' facilities, pointing out the sites of the buildings which will rise in the future. Actual constructon work will commence Monday morning, according to the officials. The surveying is practically completed at this time.

Money for the wonderful structure, which will cost well over $100,000, has been given by an anonymous donor in memory of the late Mrs. Mary Norton Clapp. Myron Hunt, one of America's foremost architects, is in charge of the plans, which assures a first-class building, adequate to the needs of a college of the type of Occidental. In a general way the new structure will follow the type of the present buildings, blending into the campus scheme perfectly.

NEW TRACT WINS MANY INVESTORS

Old Hahn Homestead Now Being Sold In Lots by Edwards & Wildey

After remaining intact as an estate for more than fifty years, during which time the neighboring territory has been built up with almost alarming rapidity, the old Hahn homestead, now known as Kenilworth Park, is being subdivided.

The Edwards & Wildey Company, one of the oldest real estate firms in Southern California, succeeded in buying the land after offers had been consistently turned down to sell to other real estate firms. Unit No. 1 which was placed on sale recently took the real estate investors of Glendale by storm.

Being in a strategic position in the path of Glendale's progress, real estate experts predict that Kenilworth Park will be the city's fastest developing residential section within a few months.

In Midst of Homes

The new tract is bounded on the north by Glenwood drive, on the south by the Glendale-Burbank car line and on the east by Kenilworth avenue. On all sides homes have been built up to its boundaries.

Seldom, if ever, before has there been a more attractive opportunity offered to the home builder than is offered in Kenilworth Park. Only a few short blocks distant are stores, schools, and churches. Almost perfect transportation facilities will be enjoyed by the residents.

The Glendale-Burbank car line passes directly through with a car stop on the tract. The regular Glendale car is a few blocks away.

Improvements including water, gas, electricity, cement sidewalks, and curbs, and crushed rock streets are being rushed to completion. Reasonable restrictions have been placed to protect the interests of those who buy.

Otto Wildey, a member of the firm which is subdividing the Hahn estate, states that never before in their seventeen years of experience in subdividing have conditions been more favorable to resale opportunities. The land was bought for a low figure and consequently is being retailed at prices lower than neighboring raw acreage. Then too, the fact that the adjoining land is built up, increases the value of these lots. Mr. Wildey predicts even greater resale profits than have been enjoyed from any of their former subdivisions.

It is said that lots in Kenilworth Park are now selling as low as $1150 including all improvements.

MOUNTAIN VISTA LURE TO BUYERS

Kenneth Grand Tract Offers Sweeping Views of Scenic Beauty

With the opening of the Kenneth Grand tract, another bedrock opportunity is offered Glendale home-seekers and investors to acquire property in the rapidly developing and very desirable northwest section of the city, announces Charles B. Guthrie, 110 West Broadway, tract manager.

The development is located at the west end of the present Kenneth road, that wide ribbon of superb boulevard along which many of the finest homes in the city are being built.

The view from the Kenneth Grand tract takes in the mountains to the north, south and west, with the heart of Glendale lying to the southeast, and offers a magnificent panorama.

Moderate Prices

"Every lot is a view lot," states Mr. Guthrie, "yet they are all practically level, the vistas being afforded by the general altitude and not by the immediate slope of the tract.

"The prices are very low, considering the location. Up to April 1, some of the lots can be reserved for as small a down payment as $250, the balance on or before thirty months, interest payable quarterly."

Mr. Guthrie states that the office on the tract is now open and reservations are being made. He urges all those who have so kindly waited to make their purchases in this tract to come out at the earliest opportunity, or phone Glendale 1640.

WOMEN TO FILE INCOME RETURNS

Internal Revenue Collector Tells Conditions of Tax Payments

Thousands of women are required to file an income tax return and pay a tax on their net income for the year 1922. No official estimate can be given of the number of such women, but statistics of income for the year 1920, recently issued, show that approximately 503,000 women filed returns for that year, claiming the $1,000 exemption allowed a single person, according to Collector of Internal Revenue Rex B. Goodcell.

The amount of net income reported by these women was $1,264,955,727. In addition there were filed 132,181 returns by women claiming an exemption of $2,000 as the head of a family, "a person who supports and maintains in one household one or more individuals closely related to him (or her) by blood, marriage or adoption." Net income reported by these women for the year 1920 amounted to $388,364,530. Under the revenue act now in force the personal exemption allowed the head of a family is $2,500 if the net income for 1922 was $5000 or less, and $2000 if the net income exceeded $5,000.

Wives File Returns

The number of wives making returns separate from husbands for the year 1920 was 77,558 reporting net income of $534,840,405. These figures show the income reported in returns filed by women forms an important part of the aggregate income of the people of the United States.

A woman who was widowed during the year 1922 unless the head of a family, or re-married on or before December 31, 1922, may claim a personal exemption of only $1000. A divorcee, or wife who continuously and without necessity makes her home apart from her husband is classed as a single person, and entitled only to the $1000 personal exemption.

Whether a man and wife are "living apart", for the purposes of the income tax law, depends upon individual circumstances. A wife who supports an invalid husband in a sanitarium may claim the exemption allowed a married couple. The separation is one of necessity.

The revenue act does not prescribe the amount of the exemption allowed a married woman living with her husband. Married couples living together are granted an exemption of $2500 or $2000 depending upon whether their combined net income is $5000 or less, of more than $5000. Husband and wife may make separate returns, or they may make a joint return. In the event separate returns are made, either husband or wife may claim the exemption allowed married persons, or they may divide it between them in such proportion as they choose.

The period for filing income tax returns ends at midnight March 15, and Collector Goodcell urges taxpayers to file early and avoid the last week's rush. Returns may be filed at the Federal Building or at the branch offices located at the Union Bank and Trust Co., Eighth and Hill, Chamber of Commerce, 130 South Broadway, and Chamber of Commerce, Hollywood.

GROWTH LAID TO SMALLER POWERS

General Maurice Says Military Forces Greater Now Than Before War

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service

LONDON, March 3. — "Sinn Fein"—"For ourselves alone"—has spread all over Europe, according to General Sir Frederick Maurice.

Europe, instead of working in concert, is now split into nations each striving to achieve its own purposes, General Maurice declared.

"The armies of Europe in 1913, when more than one country was preparing for the World War which it foresaw, numbered 3,500,000 men," General Maurice said.

"The armies of Europe today, four years after 'the war to end war,' are 4,350,000 men.

"This is not due, as is often supposed to the ambition of great Powers.

More Soldiers

Great Britain has some 10,000 more soldiers now than in 1913 but she has increased responsibilities in Constantinople, Palestine and the Rhine which far more than absorb these extra men.

"France and Italy, contrary to general supposition, reduced their armies last year.

PLAN WITH CARE FOR CITY GROWTH

Benmar Hills Is Balanced, Beautiful and Model; Definite Program

Towns and cities generally spring up in haphazard fashion, growing by units, or subdivisions, rather than by following a definite plan.

But in the case of Benmar Hills, there is an endeavor to construct a model American community from its very foundations. This property, a part of which lies in the western section of Burbank, has been carefully planned as the field for Burbank's future expansion. It is proposed to control that expansion carefully so that by the time the population reaches 100,000 people, there will have been developed a well-balanced, beautiful, model American city, complete in every detail.

Some of the interesting problems attached to this enterprise were outlined by an official of the Southern California Corporation, in charge of Benmar Hills development, as follows:

Industrial Element

"A city to be well balanced economically cannot be simply a residence community. It must have a strong industrial element with adequate commercial activities. On the other hand, for the industrial and commercial features to predominate diminishes the desirability of the community for residential purposes.

"Benmar Hills will keep these various elements nicely balanced. It is proposed to require that all factories and manufacturing establishments locating there shall be operated with electricity or gas, that they shall erect attractive buildings, insofar as it is possible, and provide agreeable surroundings. Provision is made for the development of a residence section suitable to the requirements of those employed in the factories. It will be located conveniently close and yet will be separated from the industrial section by a large park.

All Locations Taken

"The commercial center will front on San Fernando boulevard, to be known as Second street and every location is already taken. Plans are completed for a number of unique features, including an arcade and brilliant illumination. The residence sections will cover the slopes to the north, with sites already designed for schools, clubs, churches and other public institutions.

"This is but the skeleton of our plan to build Burbank into a model city. The possibilities for success, however, have already been amply demonstrated."

KENNETH GRAND TRACT

Before April 1, 1923, some of these lots may be reserved on payments as low as $250 down, balance on or before 30 months, interest payable quarterly. We expect to close out this tract by April first on these terms.

Stephens' Campaign Remains 'Within Law'

LOS ANGELES, March 3.—If the spirit of the California law was violated by officials of the Stephens administration in soliciting funds from state civil service employes, they were careful to keep within the letter of the law, Assemblyman Henry E. Carter, chairman of the legislative investigating committee announced at the end of a three-day hearing.

The committee will leave for Sacramento late this afternoon to continue their investigation there.

The committee at the Los Angeles hearing found that several employes had received "hints" they should contribute to the Stephens fund. The committee announced they were confident the law had been violated in a "keep within the law" manner.
